Red Pressure Building For Cuts In Arms

British Laborites Ask Why London Slow In Matching Soviet Slash

LONDON (AP)—Soviet pressure on Britain and the United States to match the cuts Russia says she is making in her armed forces drew mixed reaction today in London and Washington.

Fifty-five opposition Labor members of Parliament hailed the Soviet announcement and called for an early end to Britain's draft, sharp cuts in defense spending and swift action to secure a world disarmament pact.

The Laborites signed a declaration saying the Soviet announcement makes it "clear that the challenge of communism is economic, social and political, not military, and that the Soviet Union wants peace as much as any country in the world."

Prime Minister Eden himself has welcomed Russia's announced arms cuts, but he has emphasized the Soviets merely are copying the Western allies who were the first to reduce their armies after World War II. The Eden government also has made clear presently there is no justification for a major reduction in the over-all defense program because the dangers of war have not yet vanished.

IN WASHINGTON, Defense Secretary Wilson said the United States expects to maintain armed forces of their present size for years to come. Moreover, he added, these forces would be given new weapons and equipment which will make the maximum use of firepower.

"There is no clear indication," Wilson said in an Armed Forces Day speech, "that the world situation has improved to the point where we can importantly modify our policy of strength for the long pull."

However, Harold E. Stassen, the President's special adviser on disarmament, announced that Eisenhower's special task force of military, nuclear and industrial leaders would gather May 29 to analyze the implications of the Soviet military reduction.

Their discussion will be tied in with the failure of the recent London disarmament talks.

Stassen evidenced much less skepticism than other officials have expressed concerning the Russian announcement of military manpower cuts. He said it could be "a desirable dividend" for a resident Eisenhower's peace policy.

He disagreed, however, with suggestions that he might be out of step with the White House and State Department, both of which had voiced essentially negative reactions.

MOSCOW followed up its announcement of a slash of 1,200,000 men and 375 warships in the next year by calling on the two strongest Western allies to match it.

"Why does not Britain follow the Soviet example since so much is being said about the crippling effects of the military burden on Britain's economy?" Moscow radio asked.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda in Moscow made a similar call on the United States and ridiculed Secretary of State Dulles for his reaction to the Soviet announcement.

"It is clear to any child that the less men in the armed forces the more workers available for construction of new homes, machines, roads, hospitals and schools," Pravda said. "What has Dulles seen in these motives that is criminal? What is suspicious or dangerous about it?"

Dulles had said the cutback would not markedly reduce Soviet military power.

Armed Forces Day—1956

MASSSED PERSONNEL of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard strike a symbolic pose for the annual observance of Armed Forces Day.

Army Said 'Declaring War' On Air Force In New Fuss

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—The St. Paul Pioneer Press says that the Army has "declared war" on the Air Force.

The Press said that, in a reminiscent of the great interservice fight over armed forces unification, the Army is calling defense policy "fallacious" and "national disaster."

The newspaper said the row was expected to flare publicly in the near future. It said the Army position reveals:

1. Basic differences of professional opinion between the Army and the Air Force over how future wars will be fought.

2. A jurisdictional struggle between the two services over who should run the guided missile program.

3. Existence of an Army guided missile named "Jupiter" now operational, having a reputed range of 1,500 miles.

4. STATEMENTS by the Army that the Air Force is failing miserably in its mission to give the Army logistical support in such vital operations as troop-carrying and servicing.

5. An Air Force public relations document in which Air Force information specialists are instructed to "flood" the American public with facts about the Air Force and which outlines a high-powered publicity campaign to be undertaken on behalf of that branch of the service.

Army officers at the Pentagon, and, to a lesser degree, civilian heads of Army departments, have long been smoldering over what the Pioneer Press said they consider "favoritism" by the administration toward the Air Force and what is termed the "increasing imbalance" of American defense forces.

The Army says, "the continuing ascendancy of the other armed forces, patently to the detriment of the Army, promises to gnaw at the vitals of the Army until, in a few years at most, the effectiveness of the Army may be reduced to virtual impotence."

Both men are being held in jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Police said Lee was picked up after they learned he registered for the same small hotel room that Jamison had occupied.

Another inmate, Ernest Hamilton, 43, of Cincinnati, gave himself up Wednesday at the Scioto County Jail in Portsmouth, Ohio. Hamilton had been charged with armed robbery.

Still at large is Theodore Smith, 22, of Lorain, Ohio. Smith was sent to the hospital after he had been charged with burglary.

Jamison, 30, of Newark, Ohio, and Lee, 35, from Norwood, Mass., had been convicted of second-degree murder.

The four men broke out of the hospital by sawing the bars from a second story window and sliding to the ground with the aid of an improvised rope made of window drapes.

SW Ohio Library Aides Hold Meet

YELLOW SPRINGS (AP)—The Southwest District of the Ohio Library Assn. conducted its annual all-day meeting at Antioch College yesterday with more than 325 librarians attending.

They heard Antioch College President Samuel B. Gould urge a husbanding of professional librarians for professional duties while volunteers take over clerical duties in libraries, he said.

"Shortages in the library profession are like those in the teaching profession. We must take a new look at our libraries and find ways to use more effectively the librarians we have."

U.S. Prevents Shipment To Israel Army

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. customs officers have blocked shipment of 21 military vehicles to Israel on grounds they were not covered by an export license issued for spare parts.

State Department press officer Lincoln White disclosed yesterday the half trucks were taken off an Israeli freighter in New York Harbor a week ago Thursday. He said the ship sailed the next day.

According to White, customs officials found there was no valid export license covering the vehicles. He said Israel purchasing authorities had an export license for half track spare parts, not for whole vehicles. White said he saw nothing dishonest in the situation, but he declined to express any opinion when asked whether it was "attempted smuggling."

The Israeli Embassy issued a statement last night saying that "on May 11 shippers commissioned by the Israel government loaded certain surplus vehicles destined to be used in Israel as spare parts."

The embassy said the shipment was made against a license from the State Department's munitions control division "for spare parts in the amount of $150,000."

NEW FARM BILL NEARS FINAL OK IN CONGRESS

Nation Flexing Military Muscle

Armed Forces Day Celebration To Exhibit 'Power For Peace'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation was flexing its military muscles today in a display of men, aircraft, guns and missiles in celebration of Armed Forces Day.

Secretary of Defense Wilson set the tone for the demonstration, saying it would be an "exhibition of power for peace and in no sense for intimidation or aggression."

Wilson told a banquet last night that the United States means to keep its armed forces at about present size and to give them even better equipment and firepower.

"There is no clear indication," Wilson said, "that the world situation has improved to the point where we can importantly modify our policy of strength."

At least one part of the planned demonstration of U. S. military might was scaled down, apparently to avoid a jarring note in present talk about possible world disarmament.

THE AIR FORCE had planned to send a record mass flight of 216 B47 medium all-jet bombers over the nation's capital and several other Eastern cities. However, Wilson ordered the flyover reduced to 45 bombers, one wing in strength. And the flight plan was limited to Washington and neighboring Baltimore.

The day's demonstrations centered in Washington, where everything from military medical equipment to ballistic missiles was ready for display at Bolling Air Force Base.

Open to public inspection for the first time were the Air Force Snark long-range missile and the Navy's Regulus missile.

At Selfridge Air Force Base in Michigan the Army put on display its own candidate for medium range ballistic missile attention, the Redstone. In Washington and elsewhere civilians got a chance for closeup inspection of the Army's Nike missile.

This year's Armed Forces Day celebration for the first time was literally global in extent. An Air Force plane planned to fly over the North Pole and attempt to radio greetings to Navy men at the South Pole.

3 Men Killed In Gunfight

Robber Slain After Cop, Detective Die

CLEVELAND (AP)—A robber and a patrolman died in a burst of gunfire near Public Square today, and a detective was fatally hurt. The patrolman was Joseph Haydu, 30.

The robber was not immediately identified.

Frank Begin, a store detective for the Higbee Co., was taken to Lutheran Hospital with chest wounds and his death was reported a few minutes later.

Begin was a brother of Bishop Floyd L. Begin of the Cleveland Roman Catholic Diocese.

The robber was shot down at East Ninth and Webster. Scores of clerks, customers and shoppers witnessed portions of the running gunfight.

The incident began in the S. S. Kresge Co., which has entrances on both Euclid Avenue and Prospect Avenue, near the Square.

Police said Patrolman Haydu was shot in the heart by the robber there. A clerk, Miss Martha Mathews, was reported to have received a head injury.

The gunman ran out of the store, and into the Public Square entrance of the Higbee Co., a department store.

Begin was shot inside the store which he served as a detective.

Mrs. Ann Larsen, a witness, said, "I saw Mr. Begin running after the man. I heard a shot. I ducked. When I looked up Mr. Begin was lying on the floor."

Next the man ran from the Higbee store into Prospect Avenue and turned eastward, where he was shot down near Webster Court.

Boy Scouts Enter Frog In Jump Test For German School

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP)—Two frogs are entered for a grammar school class at Mannheim-Rheinau Germany, in the International Frog Olympics which holds preliminary jumps today.

Deutschland Freund and Hans, the two German entries, are not German frogs, but were entered by two local Boy Scouts, Stan Grunder and Harold Drummond.

They went out and caught them after a letter arrived from Valentine Gremm, teacher at the Mannheim school, saying his class had wanted to enter frogs but hadn't been able to catch any.

Foreign entries now have risen to 34 from 15 countries. Seven are entered from Hawaii. The rest of the 400-odd hoppers entered for tomorrow's finals are native American frogs.

Sen. Byrd Seeks OK On Road Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) said today his Senate Finance Committee probably will approve the taxes to pay for a big highway construction program.

The committee closed two days of public hearings on the tax feature of the bill yesterday. Byrd has called a closed committee session Monday for votes on these sections.

He reported it was possible the bill could be called up on the Senate floor later next week.

Sen. Long (D-La.), a finance member, questioned whether any new taxes were necessary for the roadbuilding program. He said that motorists and truck operators now pay $2½ billion annually in various taxes. This would pay even for the greatly stepped up construction program envisaged in pending legislation.

Byrd said much of the present revenue is used for other purposes and would have to be replaced through other taxes if all of it were earmarked for roads.

The House voted for $14.8 billion of additional revenues over a 16-year period to help finance the federal share of the program. Byrd said he expects his committee to approve that amount.

Byrd noted that the bulk of the new money would come from raising the federal gasoline tax from 2 to 3 cents a gallon.

Ohio State Gets New Money Grant

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio State University has another $100,000 and three more years to continue its program of improving school administration.

The W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich., announced the new grant. It is in addition to a $289,000 grant in 1952 which Ohio State has used for a school-community development study which ends next month.

Like previous grants, the new distribution of $2½ million went to 29 universities and agencies "for aid to the schools of America through improved preparation of school administrators."

She Blames Cake Flop On Altitude

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP)—The lady who called down manager Bill Lavocchia wanted to know the altitude of Blacksburg.

"About 2,000 feet," replied Lavocchia.

"Are you sure it isn't close to 5,000 feet?" she asked.

"No, only 2,000."

"Then something else must be wrong with my cake."

BLINDED AND SCARRED, Victor Riesel, crusading labor columnist, tells a hospital bed news conference that Congress should make a thorough investigation of "sleazy labor racketeers." Bearing the red blotches caused by sulphuric acid thrown at him six weeks ago, Riesel warned that unless something is done soon, the public faces a "grim future" at the hands of labor mobsters.

Oregon Democrats Prefer Adlai Over Estes In Primary

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Democrats gave Adlai Stevenson a boost toward the presidential nomination and Republicans put up a lusty cheer for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket in returns today from Oregon's primary election.

Stevenson, pointing toward bigger game in Florida and California, stayed a consistent pace in front of Sen. Estes Kefauver in their write-in contest for 16 Democratic delegates in yesterday's balloting.

More than half of the party's voters penciled in their presidential choice.

But the presidential race, which required that the voters write in their choice, drew fewer votes than the senatorial contest of Sen. Wayne Morse and Woody Smith which had attracted small pre-election attention. Republicans, needing only to put an X on their presidential ballot, showered un-

$1,631 Holdup And Attack Admitted Fake

AKRON (AP)—A 35-year-old mother today was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor and making a false report to police after admitting that she and her 14-year-old son staged a fake $1,631 robbery.

Mrs. Betty Morefield, secretary of a women's bowling league, reported Wednesday night that she was slugged on the head and robbed as she got out of her car near a restaurant where 120 women bowlers were waiting to collect their prize money.

Police said she admitted yesterday that her son, Richard, hit her on the head with a rock and drove her car about two miles from the restaurant, where it was abandoned. The admission was made, officers said, after her son was questioned at school.

Richard admitted that $631 was hidden in a movie projector in the attic at the Morefield home.

Mrs. Morefield told police she had spent all but $431 of the league's money and intended to pay it back, but planned the phony robbery when she couldn't raise the rest of the money. Asked what she did with the money, she said she "just piddled it away on things."

Police said it was up to the bowling league to decide whether to press embezzlement charges.

French Mob Halts Troops; 40 Hurt

GRENOBLE, France (AP)—Some 40 persons were injured last night as mobs battled police and smashed railway equipment in an effort to keep French troops from going to strife-torn North Africa.

Police said they arrested 25 persons and finally restored order after demonstrators had blocked switches with iron bars and smashed rails here.

Police said the demonstration was organized by the "Youth Committee for a Peaceful Settlement of the Algerian Problem." They labeled it a pro-Communist organization.

Senate Sends Measure Back For House Nod

Aiken Says He Plans Urging Eisenhower To Sign Latest Version

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders expressed hope today a new farm bill will become law next week without further controversy.

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) said he would recommend that President Eisenhower sign the measure which the Senate passed by a voice vote last night, if the House accepts a series of changes the Senate made.

Whether the House would agree was not immediately apparent, but Aiken and Sen. Anderson (D-NM) forecast such action, and Sen. Ellender (D-La.) spoke of getting the measure to the White House Tuesday or Wednesday.

"I think we now have as good a bill as it is possible to get at this session," said Aiken, who frequently speaks for the administration on farm matters.

The bill replaces a more comprehensive measure Eisenhower vetoed April 16. As its principal feature it authorizes the $1.2 billion soil bank program he requested as a means of paying farmers to take surplus crop land out of production.

NEITHER THE Senate nor the House approved, however, Eisenhower's request for authority to pay farmers for a year a portion of the money to which they would be entitled for compliance next year.

The measure still includes some provisions to which Eisenhower has objected, but Senate compromises on feed grain supports and parity levels tended to bring those features closer to Eisenhower's views.

Missing from the bill are requirements for rigid, higher support prices, a two-way system of figuring parity prices and many other provisions which brought on Eisenhower's veto of the earlier measure. Parity is a price determined by law to be fair to farmers in relation to their costs.

In its effort to avoid another battle with the House, the Senate at one point backed up and rejected an amendment it had just adopted to put a dollar ceiling on price support and soil bank payments to any one farmer.

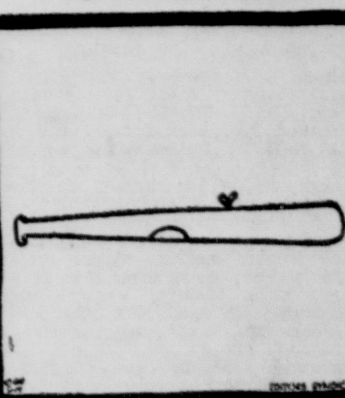

The reversal involved tangled parliamentary maneuvering, but the Senate agreed after being told inclusion of such ceilings almost certainly would force the bill into a long-drawn-out conference with the House. The Senate had adopted ceilings in the earlier omnibus bill, but the House rejected them.

The Senate voted 73-14 to support feed grain prices this year no restrictions on planting. The feed grains are barley, rye, oats and grain sorghums. They would be eligible for price supports next year only if supports are provided for commercial corn grown outside acreage allotments.

THE HOUSE had voted permanent supports for feed grains, based on the levels offered for commercial corn. It also voted to make growers of feed grains eligible for soil bank benefits—an action the Senate reversed as part of a compromise worked out by Aiken and Sen. Holland (D-Fla.).

Both House and Senate agreed on a $500 million fund to support prices of perishable commodities through purchase programs, and on $200 million to help dispose of surplus products.

The Senate agreed to retain through 1957 present parity formulas for wheat, corn and peanuts.

Newer formulas would reduce support levels. The Senate Agriculture committee had voted a two-year extension of the higher level, but the Senate accepted the one-year compromise.

As the bill cleared the Senate it included a number of features not asked by the administration but demanded by farm area senators, both Republicans and Democrats.

Among these are:

1. A two-price program for rice, under which that part used in this country and Cuba would bring higher prices than the balance for export and other uses. The program would require approval by the secretary of agriculture before it goes into operation.

2. A limit on reduction of the cotton acreage allotment within any state to one per cent during each of the next two years.

3. Authority to sell up to 100 million bushels of surplus government wheat annually at lower prices for livestock feed.

20 Cops Swoop Down On 2 Boys

CLEVELAND (P)—Twenty policemen armed with riot guns and tear gas who surrounded an abandoned stable in which a shotgun was being fired were somewhat embarrassed yesterday when out walked two frightened boys.

Patrolmen answered a call from a woman who said shotgun pellets were striking the windows of her home.

When the boys, aged 10 and 11, saw the squad of police and their arsenal they climbed out of the first floor window through which they had entered.

Officers said the boys had a shotgun and a basket of about 100 shells. The pair was taken to the detention home.

Egypt To Buy Arms 'Any Place'

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (P)—Premier Gam Abdel Nasser said today Egypt "is free to buy arms from any place we like and in any quantity we like."

Speaking to a class of graduating naval cadets, Nasser vowed to "resist with all our force" any foreign efforts to limit the quantity of arms Egypt receives.

Nasser spoke as reports circulated that Egypt is discussing the purchase of arms from Communist China as a means of circumventing a possible U. N. embargo. Egypt has just extended recognition to Red China, which is not a U. N. member.

Aid Cut Expected

WASHINGTON (P)—Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) predicts the House Foreign Affairs Committee will vote to chop up to $750 million off President Eisenhower's $4.9 billion foreign aid request.

Another Hearing Due In Deavertown Fuss Over Teacher

McCONNELLSVILLE (P)—An attempt will be made Monday night to reach a settlement in the case of a Deavertown High School teacher charged with, among other things, paddling five of his 15-year-old girl pupils.

Jack Eberle, 25, is fighting his ouster from the high school for the paddlings plus accusations of teaching the Bible in class without permission and failing to perform assigned athletic coaching duties.

His attorneys said they plan to present a settlement offer to school board members Monday night. They would not say what the offer was.

Eberle's attorneys conferred yesterday with school board members. It was the fifth session of a hearing on the charges against the teacher.

Lenses On Lights Receive Cleaning

If city traffic lights look a little bit brighter now, give the service department the credit rather than your eyesight.

Service director Dewey Speakman said that the lenses on all the lights have been cleaned.

Many motorists have complained that they cannot tell when the lights are red, amber or green, especially when they are looking into the sun. Speakman explained that the cleaning, plus the fact that the background of the lights is a dark green, should be an aid to all concerned.

Famed Mission Inn Gets New Owner

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (P)—The Fairmont Hotel Co. of San Francisco has purchased the famed Mission Inn, a 400-room hostelry which has sheltered both kings and presidents in its 80-year history.

The ornate, Spanish style inn covers a square block in the downtown section. It was started by the late Frank A. Miller in a small adobe building his father acquired in lieu of $378 back pay from an employer.

'Ducky' Corn Hit By New Demand

IRONTON (P)—The Internal Revenue Service has slapped another lien on Ironton City Councilman D. E. (Ducky) Corn and his wife, Mary.

This one is for $178,508 for income taxes in the years 1951-1954. Less than two weeks ago, the government said the Corns owe $113,191 in unpaid cabaret tax. Corn operates the Latin Quarter Night Club here.

Corn's reaction to the income tax lien was the same as it was toward the cabaret tax lien: "We don't owe it. We're going to fight."

Sales Tax Data In New Climb

Sales tax collections of $4,266,736 from the sale of prepaid tax receipts for the week ending May 5, 1956, topped revenues for the corresponding week of 1955 by $281,671, or 7.07 percent, according to State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy.

This marks the second week in the present calendar year that statewide tax collections for the week have exceeded $4 million.

In the state treasurer's latest report, Pickaway County went along with the statewide increase. Sales tax receipts in this district for the week ending May 5 amounted to $9,264.10, as compared to $8,355.85 for the corresponding week of last year.

The rise and fall of sales tax revenue is generally regarded as an accurate barometer of general business volume. With only scattered exceptions, statewide and local reports have maintained a gain over the 1955 figures for many past months.

Hedges met Hugh Coffman of Ashville, Kenneth Reid of Five Points, Roger Bennington of Circleville and Bob Foster of Lithopolis.

Russian Churchmen Visiting In U.S.

NEW YORK (P)—Russian Baptist leaders say their church is converting thousands of Communists to Christianity each year.

"We have full freedom of religion and we are using it," said Dr. Jakov Zhidkov. "We have the freedom to do missionary activity."

Every year 12,000 to 15,000 new converts are brought into the Baptist churches.

Zhidkov, 70, heads a team of five Russian Baptist leaders which arrived here yesterday to spend a month visiting U. S. Baptist churches.

Rocking Cradle Also Delays Jury

YOUNGSTOWN (P)—A Mahoning County jury, behind locked doors, was deep in debate. Tension was rather high.

The law says juries may not be interrupted in their deliberations, but Deputy Charles Brown broke in on the deliberations, conferred with a woman juror, from whom he obtained a note.

The deputy passed it on to a greatly relieved father, at home, who was able to resume feeding his infant daughter.

The father ran out of baby food and had to get the written formula from the child's mother.

CHS Graduates Reminded To Keep Friendly Outlook

Members of the graduating class of Circleville High School, assembled last night in the school's 98th annual commencement, were reminded that a friendly outlook on life is one of the first essential steps toward success.

A senior class of 102 heard Tennyson Guyer, the evening's main speaker, stress the merits of the Golden Rule as a yardstick for life's ambitions. Friends and relatives of the graduates gathered with them for the ceremonies in the new CHS gymnasium.

Guyer, nationally known public speaker, delivered the class address after the salutatory by Sally Clifton and the valedictory by Mary Jo Smith. The main speaker was introduced by City Schools Superintendent George A. Hartman.

Summarizing his thoughts and remarks to the graduating class, Guyer said:

"COMMENCEMENT night is both a finish and a beginning. Many graduates believe it to be the end of a quest, while actually it is only the beginning of a brand new kind of education.

"The word 'commencement' ends in a word 'cement.' Right off, the prospect is hard. Winston Churchill said of the war, in a statement that well describes graduation, 'This is not the end, nor is it the beginning of the end, but it is the end of the beginning.'

"Down through the ages, parents have worried about their children. Yet science now proves there hasn't been a single new sin discovered in the last 6,000 years! The truth is the average high school grad today is already about seven or eight years more adult than his folks were at the same age.

"You young people have come along in time to inherit two wars and their aftermath. You have witnessed speed, change, and mystery. You live in a land that has but seven percent of the world's population, yet owns half the world's goods. We had more automobiles stolen in the U. S. last year than Russia has in her whole country!

"Each time a new car leaves the factory in Detroit, we in Ohio have 22 feet less highway space than we had the minute before. We need eight new school classrooms a day from now until 1960 just to break even with the birth-rate!

"Actually, there are three essentials to successful living:

"(1) Your aptitude; (2) your attitude, and (3) your altitude.

"YOUR TASK is to find what you are best suited to do—develop a climate or radiance—and finally live above your critics and enemies. You will soon learn in life, there is 'no nice way to a heel.' "If I were graduating with you tonight, I would make it the appointment of my life to cultivate people. I would study my friends and neighbors until I comprehended their thoughts, feelings, actions, and deepest emotion. I would resolve to spread PERFUME and not LINAMENT as I traveled through life.

"America remains as one of the last places on earth where the individual finds his true estate. Here are the glories of opportunity, dignity, equality, and highest achievement.

"Each graduate here assembled owes something to those who have helped hold the ladder by which he climbs. No student ever reached any goal with-

Local Draft Board Requests Any Change To Be Reported

Did you know that if you have registered for the draft since 1940 you must report all changes in occupational, marital, family, dependency, military and physical status to the draft board?

That is something sorely neglected, according to Jack E. Clifton, chairman of local board 98 of Pickaway County.

The draft board chairman also stressed the need for keeping the board advised of any change in address, since a large number of reported delinquencies originate with the failure to perform this simple act.

A registrant is now required to submit any change in his status whatsoever to his local board within 10 days after it occurs. In cases where the board mails him a request for information, the registrant is given 10 days in which to reply.

"I BELIEVE it is significant to point out," Clifton said, "that the failure to keep draft boards completely informed has, in many cases, resulted in the induction of those registrants who might not have been required to go if this obligation had been met.

Navy Air Reserve Trailer Is Coming

Young men of Circleville and the surrounding county will soon get a first-hand opportunity to learn what the Navy's air reserve has to offer them under the Reserve Forces Act of 1955.

The Naval Air Reserve unit from Port Columbus will have a trailer parked in downtown Circleville next Friday and Saturday, May 25 and May 26.

Personnel coming here with the trailer will talk to young men who are interested in the Navy's reserve air branch. In addition to boys 17 and 18½, veterans are also eligible to join the Naval Air Reserve program and may find out more about it by visiting the trailer.

Those who have recently been released from active duty, and have a reserve obligation, can reduce their liability for recall by joining the Navy's reserve airmen.

A number of Pickaway County men are already serving in the various squadrons at Port Columbus.

The trailer will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. on the two days at the end of next week.

DiSalle Confident Of Poll Victory

NEWARK (P)—Michael V. DiSalle of Toledo, the Democratic nominee for governor, says that "by preservation we will build a victorious campaign."

"I don't feel this campaign will be any tougher than the primary," DiSalle said. "The Republican crusade has boiled over and put out the flame, and all that's left is the sound of gas escaping."

He said, "This year we will have the crusade and we will maintain the tradition in Ohio of never electing an attorney general in his first race for governor."

DiSalle's opposition in the November election will be Republican C. William O'Neill, Ohio attorney general.

The cartridges would fit a 45-70 Springfield rifle, but if fired, would explode the gun.

BRING A FRIEND TO CHURCH WITH YOU

St. Philip's Readies Whitsunday Honors For All Services

St. Philip's Church will observe Whitsunday this week at Sunday morning services commemorating the coming of The Holy Ghost upon the Apostles, as related in the first chapter of the Book of The Acts of the Apostles.

Beginning at the 8 a. m. celebration of The Holy Eucharist, the "prophets" for Whitsunday from the Book of Common Prayer will be used. The altar will be vested in red, signifying the "tongues of flame" used as symbols of the descent of the Holy Ghost.

Whitsunday, called Pentecost by some parts of the church, is celebrated throughout the Anglican Communion as one of the three major festivals of the church year calendar. It is a "Holy Day of Obligation" for all Anglicans, when all the faithful are urged to receive the Blessed Sacrament.

During the 9 a. m. family service, which is a weekly event at St. Philip's Church, the children of the parish family and their parents will hear the story of the first Whitsunday as recorded in the New Testament. They will be addressed on the subject of "The Holy Ghost in You".

There will also be a celebration of The Holy Eucharist at 10:30 a. m., at which time the Rector will speak to the parish concerning "The Holy Ghost, The Comforter". The title of the address is also the title of the offertory anthem to be sung by the choir, with solo part by Mrs. Clayton Vaughan.

During the celebration of The Holy Eucharist, the Rector will be assisted by Lawrence Miga and Stephen Ater at the altar as server and assistant server. Leading in the singing of the hymns for the day and the anthem will be the combined parish choir, composed of members of both the senior and junior choirs of the parish, under the direction of Mr. John O'Donnell and Mrs. Howard B. Moore.

Crucifer for this service will be David Hutzelman. The flag bearers will be Clayton Vaughan Jr. and Geoffrey Denham.

Methodist Choirs Exchange Times For This Sunday

In the duplicate worship services at 8:15 and 10:45 at First Methodist Church Sunday morning, the Rev. Charles D. Reed will use for his sermon subject the question asked of Simon Peter at the trial of Jesus, "Are You Not Also One of His Disciples?" The Scripture Lesson will be read from The Gospel According to Saint John, the eighteenth chapter, verses fifteen through twenty-seven.

The junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. James Hodges, will sing the Negro spiritual "Steal Away to Jesus", and also, "My God and King", by Porter, in the 10:45 a. m. service. The adult choir, under the direction of Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, will sing "Bless the Lord", by Ivanoff, in the early service.

The choirs are exchanging times of their service for this one Sunday.

Hymns for the service will include "He Leadeth Me", by Gilmore, and "Soldiers of Christ Arise", by Charles Wesley. Mrs. Ervin Leist will be at the organ in both services.

Officers of the junior and senior Methodist Youth Fellowship will be formally installed in the second service. Officers for the senior MYF are: president, Elaine Woodward; vice-president, Austin Laughlin; secretary, Flo Goldschmidt; and treasurer, Jo Goldschmidt.

Flag Presented

The local Veterans of Foreign Wars Post has presented a new American flag to the Salem Methodist Church at Meade. Post Commander Darrel R. Courtright made the presentation to the Rev. Lester Taylor, pastor of the church.

The height of the Statue of Liberty from base to torch is 151 feet, one inch.

This morning at the market a reporter questioned me:

- Q. You're a home maker and mother?
- A. Yes.
- Q. Do you and your family attend Church?
- A. Every week, unless prevented by illness.
- Q. Surely you don't take the children when they're small?
- A. Oh yes. It's been proved that habits formed during the first five years establish a pattern for life.
- Q. When it's raining or snowing doesn't it often seem best to stay home?
- A. No. Bad weather doesn't usually keep us from doing other things we want to do. Besides, children go to school on rainy days so why not to Church and Bible School?
- Q. Then you feel regular worship is good for a family?
- A. Not only good but necessary. Religious training is the fourth R, and the most vital part of our learning to live.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Why Should God's Ministers Wear Uniforms?

There's no law in the Episcopal Church which says that a clergyman should wear a "backwards collar". There's no requirement that he and his service assistants should wear vestments.

"All right," you ask, "why do they do it?" We could answer by saying simply that it is custom, tradition. But there's more reason than that. One is that although he's still human, and you'll find that most Episcopal clergymen are very human, he is called to a peculiar and exacting task. The very fact that he's in "uniform" makes him available to be called upon to perform many services, to be of help to many people he could never otherwise reach. To a person in spiritual need that "uniform" can be as helpful as is the uniform of the "cop" on the corner.

We like clerical dress (and service vestments, too) because we feel they symbolize the importance of the task, and not the individual performing the task. The job is the thing, not the doer of the job.

In the Episcopal Church, you'll probably find a greater proportion of "church followers" and a smaller proportion of "preacher followers" than you'll find in any other church. The church and its worship are more important than the preacher.

Come and worship with us — soon — in the Episcopal Church near you. You'll see what we mean.

Sparks' Residence Set For Blessing By Episcopalians

Sunday afternoon, members of St. Philip's Parish Family will join with the Rector in the blessing of the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sparks.

The order of service will be taken from the Book of Offices of the Episcopal Church, as set forth by the presiding Bishop of the church and used for services and certain occasions not provided for in the Book of Common Prayer. The office sets apart a house for the use as a Christian home for particular members of the parish family and asks God's blessing upon the house and those who dwell there.

Members of the parish wishing to attend the service will be welcome and should meet at the church at 3 p. m. From there, they and the Rector will then proceed to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Sparks, just north of Route 56 and east of Circleville.

Sunday Schedule Of Services Listed For City Lutherans

At the 8:30 and 10:45 a. m. services Sunday in Trinity Lutheran Church, Pastor Carl G. Zehner will present the sermon, "The Power of Pentecost", taken from John 1:12.

The adult choir, directed by Carl C. Leist, will lead the singing at the early service. The congregation will sing "Holy, Holy, Holy", "Come, Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove" and "Holy Spirit, Hear Us".

At the late service, the youth choir will provide the music, under the direction of Truman Eberly.

IGNORE RED BOMB TESTS

PROBABLY any European of average intelligence and enlightenment would say, off-hand in the absence of statistical information — that the United States takes the lead in exploding experimental bombs.

For that matter, probably the great majority of Americans have the same vague idea. Why? Because of a world-wide clamor to that effect.

The U. S. News and World Report for May 11 publishes exact statistics which show that Russia is the chief "offender," if such experiments are to be considered an offense.

The United States, in the past 11 years, has had 12 tests of nuclear devices, including 61 atomic explosions. But in the past 7 years Russia has had 12 tests, and the number of explosions is kept secret. The United States tests were announced in advance, as to time and place. This practice, of course, enables people to keep out of the way of blasts and fall-out. But Russia's tests have all been secret, with no advance warnings.

Despite these figures, the air is full of protests against American series of explosions, and Krichna Menon, the ubiquitous and obviously anti-American delegate from India to the United Nations threatened to bring the United States before the World Court if the Eniwetok tests were made.

A weird corollary to all this hullabaloo is that the United States is the putatively inexhaustible reservoir of financial aid to underprivileged nations, while Russia keeps its treasury tightly buttoned up, so far as foreign aid is concerned. Apparently the giving away of untold billions of dollars doesn't have the effect upon world sentiment that many people seem to think.

A WORRISOME THOUGHT

HAROLD E. STASSEN, President Eisenhower's special assistant for disarmament, has put into words what many have been thinking. What happens when the secret of making an H-bomb, now possessed by Britain, Russia and the United States, is the possession of all nations?

Stassen is worried because the secret may gradually spread before a workable disarmament program is achieved. He indicates the secret will begin to trickle around the world in about one more year. Then the world, without absolute safeguards, will be in danger.

It is one thing to know that the big powers are so thoroughly aware of the awful potentialities of the big bomb that they will not use it. But some of the little, fanatical, have-not nations, oppressed by generations of poverty, might have no qualms. They might reason that it made little difference whether they survived or not so long as they had a chance to overawe somebody else to their advantage.

The optimistic phases of it is that the probability of the small nations getting the bomb may reduce Russia's obstinacy as to the machinery of disarmament controls. The thought of fanatical small nations starting an atomic war can be no more welcome to Kremlin inmates than to anybody else.

AGE OF BRILLIANCE

ON THE BASIS of predictions made by Gen. David Sarnoff, chairman of the Board of the Radio Corporation of America, the electric age is only now coming into its own. He sees in the offing an electronic light that will enable man to see vast distances at night, TV sets that will consist of multiple flat screens activated by a single control box no larger than a jewel case, electronic air conditioners, and magnetic tape recorders of television programs.

Stretching his prescience a bit more, General Sarnoff foresees wrist-watch radios powered by atomic batteries, vest-pocket radio telephones and electric shavers the size of a penknife. Nor does the radio pioneer place these developments in the distant future. Children born today, he predicts, will see these devices in use before they have cast their first vote.

The magic of a push-button world is being increasingly revealed. With each revolutionary advance man finds more of life's chores done for him with little or no effort on his part.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Among my recent lighter reading is a book entitled "Our Daily Poison," written by Leonard Wickenden. It is not a who-dunit nor a moral tract. Rather, it is a description of the poisons which we consume as a product of industrialization, standardization and modernization. The book does not list all of them, as no book could.

In the good old days when mother spent much of her day cooking and baking, the house always smelled of exciting things to eat, and when we died, it was from something usual like chronic indigestion. In those days when the doctor came to the house, his first command was, "Stick your tongue out."

Apparently, just by looking at the tongue, he could solve all problems and he usually did by prescribing castor oil for one horn of the dilemma and paregoric for the other. Somehow the human race survived both, as we are here to attest, although by available statistics it should have been otherwise.

Today, according to this book, we eat the products of DDT, Fluorides, Hormones, Chlorine dioxide and the Lord knows what else. Also we vaporize and fumigate and inhale and fill our lungs with poisons from smoke-stacks, from exhausts, and from cigars, cigarettes with or without complex superstructures to get rid of the smoke in spite of the fact that the only sound reason for smoking is to inhale the smoke.

It is a fascinating little book, particularly its attack on store bread which I don't like anyhow, preferring the home-baked or a sour rye or a pumpernickel, none of which I am now permitted to eat because I enjoy them. When one falls into hands of doctors, their rule is, if the patient enjoys it, it is against the diet. But store bread, I do not like, even for a diet.

When I ate for pleasure, I used to cut my bread fairly thick. Nowadays, most bread is cut by machine and comes out about an eighth of an inch thick which is too thin. They even do it to Viennese bread which thus cannot take butter without crumbling the bread. It is a tough life!

However, the author of this book does not quarrel about that. His argument is that the best ingredients are milled out of the grain and are fed to hogs and cattle. If they are good enough for hogs, why not for people? That is a very good question because hogs are fed scientifically, while humans, in this country, eat as much for pleasure as for good health.

In fact, most of the breads which I have been instructed to eat, at one time or another, for good health, such as gluten bread, I let stand in the refrigerator until someone comes along and throws the loaf out. The theory used to be that I might be frightened into eating what is good for me — I'd sooner starve.

At any rate, what the author of this book particularly objects to is chlorine dioxide which is a maturing substance. They used to put Agene into bread, only to discover that it was a wrong thing to do. Now, they use chlorine dioxide. It is sure was marvelous how the old folks took yeast, flour, water, eggs and sometimes a little milk or sugar and made bread, without a maturing substance. And it tasted good—oh, so good!

That is something that few of the younger generation know anything about. They may know the precise difference between the Marxism of Kautsky and Lenin, but not about the virtues of home-baked bread as compared to store bread wrapped in cellophane and full of chemicals.

Do you know what a polyoxyethylene is? See, even the Food and Drug Administration is not too strong for it in bread, but glycerides—well, you have to put something in store bread or it will dry up and have to be given to the Salvation Army or ground up into bread crumbs and canned. So they put a softener into the bread to keep it soft and fresh even on the third or fourth day.

Anyhow, I read the book with great interest and satisfaction. I should worry. I'm on a diet anyhow to get skinny and the less I eat, the skinnier I'll get. When men wore whiskers and looked strong, they were not skinny.

SHOWDOWN FOR UNIONS

SINCE THE merger of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, organized labor has had the poorest showing in recruiting new members since elections to determine bargaining units first began in 1936.

During the first quarter of 1956, petitions for representation elections totaled 2,211. Such elections, supervised by the National Labor Relations Board to see if workers want to be represented by a union, succeeded in only 64 per cent of the cases. This is the lowest rate of success in 20 years.

Unions may have run into a line of resistance that will be difficult to overcome.

CHAPTER 26

ON THE FORMER occasions when Val had seen Captain Donovan he had seemed to her a genial, kindly man, a typical picture of an elderly ship's captain with his sea-dog's walk, his red face and bristling gray hair. But that morning on the stroke of eleven when Dirk and she were ushered into his cabin there was no trace of geniality.

"Sit down, both of you," he said. "This is—hum, hum, a most unpleasant business, isn't it?" Val was surprised not only at his choice of words, but by his manner. She could see that Dirk was too, for he glanced sharply toward the Captain, a look of inquiry on his face. It was a little later that she became aware that Bruce was also in the cabin.

"Good morning, Doctor," Dirk said. He spoke quietly, amiably. Bruce turned. "Good morning, Nurse Alison. Good morning, Hanson," he said formally. The Captain cleared his throat and said again gruffly, "This is—hum—a most unpleasant business, isn't it?"

"A tragic business, I agree, but I don't quite understand your use of the word unpleasant, Captain," Dirk interposed quietly. "Well, I'll be blunt," the Captain said. "Nothing can be gained by beating about the bush. The doc here—I mean Doctor Harridan—has refused to sign the death certificate."

"He has refused to sign the death certificate?" Val echoed incredulously. Suddenly the whole thing had taken on a nightmare quality.

"Exactly," the Captain nodded. "You appreciate what that means, don't you, Nurse? Doctor Harridan is not satisfied in his mind as to the cause of Mrs. Featherstone's death."

"But—she died of a heart attack, I was there at the time," Val stammered.

The Captain smothered a sigh. He was irritated and out of sympathy with the whole affair. A death on board was bad enough, but a hint of murder was far worse.

"Doctor Harridan says that since Mrs. Featherstone came on board he had never set eyes on her until after she was dead." He had been consulting present notes on his desk, but now he glanced up at her sharply. "You agree to that, Nurse?"

"Yes, but I—I didn't realize myself how serious Mrs. Featherstone's condition might prove, Captain," Val said, leaning forward and speaking earnestly. "Her own doctor in Hampshire, Doctor Mangin, had led me to believe that her heart condition was mainly imaginary. Besides, she was determined that I shouldn't call in the ship's doctor."

"And why might that be?" the Captain asked, bridling. "Our company is known to engage the best officers available."

"Mrs. Featherstone had known Doctor Harridan before. They parted, I'm afraid, on unfriendly terms. Dirk broke in to say.

"The Captain felt more annoyed than ever. He was suddenly wondering if it might not have been some personal spite on Harridan's part that had made him take the stand he had. While they had been shipmates he had admired Harridan for his efficiency, but he had never really liked him.

"I wasn't aware of that," he said aloud. "But I'm sure it has no bearing on this present case."

"I think it has, Captain," Dirk said earnestly. "I'm of the opinion that Doctor Harridan would not have been averse to signing the death certificate but for the fact he had known the dead woman, and incidentally myself. And apart from the fact that he wasn't called in until too late, has he any other reason for not signing the certificate?"

The Captain made another awkward "hum, hum" noise in his throat. "I'm afraid so, Mr. Hanson. Doctor Harridan is of the opinion that some pills other than the heart pills prescribed may have been given to Mrs. Featherstone last night. He suggests that there should be an autopsy once we reach Kingston. Natural—"

DIET AND HEALTH

Are You Overbreathing?

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

YOU may be overbreathing without even being aware of the real source of your trouble. Perhaps you will attribute your symptoms of dizziness or giddiness, numbness or pain to heart trouble, worry, anxiety or something else.

Heart trouble frequently is mistakenly blamed because overbreathing, or hyperventilation, sometimes occurs after exertion and frequently produces a pain in the left chest.

Carbon Dioxide

Breathing too deeply and too frequently doesn't mean you take in too much fresh air, but that you expel too much carbon dioxide. This disturbs the delicate chemical balance in your body.

If you are overbreathing, you'll probably breathe through your mouth. You'll moisten your dry lips with your tongue and your dry pharynx by swallowing. These actions can soon distend your stomach with air. And this in turn may cause a pain in the lower left chest.

A dull ache or gnawing pain in the upper left chest may also accompany overbreathing.

Natural Reflexes

Occasionally, a person may halt hyperventilation by natural reflexes such as rising to his feet in an effort to get more fresh air. This influence of the upright position, plus the abrupt increase in overbreathing brought on by panic, sometimes produces syncope which automatically halts the hyperventilation.

Conscious effort to breathe slowly and normally might help. In some cases, however, focusing attention on the mechanism of breathing only increases tension and overbreathing occurs despite efforts to stop it.

Upper Chest

Relief sometimes is obtained by splinting the chest with tape or a rib belt to prevent expansion of the upper chest. Such steps must not be taken, you realize, without the advice of your doctor.

Lessening tension and reducing some of your responsibilities, if possible, probably will help a great deal.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

P. F.: Can kidney stones be dissolved without an operation?

Answer: In most instances, kidney stones can only be helped by surgery unless they pass by themselves.

However, good results have been obtained in some cases with the use of a new drug known as hyaluronidase.

Mrs. Dountz Gives Report At Meet Of Local DAR

Mrs. Kermit Dountz gave a report on the book "Top Soil and Civilization," when Mrs. Harold O. Borer of Grove City entertained 35 members of the Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The book, which was reported by Mrs. Dountz, discussed the influence of agriculture in the development of civilization.

The great cultures of the world were predicted on the husbandry of the soil. The authors contended that the surplus products of the farmers lot sustained the population enabling it to enliven and augment its society.

Our pioneers in their westward migration discovered nature had been formed abundantly. Finding such treasure in existence little effort was expended to conserve the blessings of forests and fertile soil. Only in later years was national recognition focused on the problem of soil conservation.

Miss Marie Hamilton, Regent, and Mrs. Christian Schwartz, Chaplain, opened the meeting with the DAR ritual. Mrs. Ben Nothstine led the salute to the flag and Mrs. James Moffit led the singing.

Good citizenship medals, sponsored by the Chapter, were announced as being awarded to the following senior girls: Peggy Jo Hoover, Walnut; Carol Bass, Circleville; Rebecca Neff, Jackson; Jeanette West, William sport; Nancy Wolfe, Pickaway; Judith Bowers, Ashville; Edith Carol Pickleseimer, Darby and Miriam Ward, Scioto.

An old diary written by Walter McDill, containing many early remembrances of Circleville, was presented by Mrs. G. I. Nickerson.

Plans were completed for a memorial service to be held for two deceased members, Mrs. Paul Cromley and Mrs. Franklin Kibler Sr., at 4 p. m. May 24 at Forrest Cemetery.

Mrs. Robert Knode set the theme for the program by reading a short quotation from the DAR manual concerning conservation. Mrs. Nothstine presented a paper on the meaning and symbolism of our flag.

Following the program refreshments were served by the committee: Mrs. Robert Graham; Mrs. E. T. Carstapen; Mrs. T. L. Cromley; Mrs. Dountz; Mrs. Calreine Squires; Mrs. C. E. Wright; Mrs. R. S. Srigley; Mrs. Richard Hedges and Mrs. Knode.

The June luncheon meeting will be held June 19 in the Presbyterian Church with Mrs. Dorothy Gearhart, hostess.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses to the members and guest, Mrs. William Speakman.

Design For Airpower

(Editor's Note: This column is furnished as a public service, by Office of Information Services, Air Research and Development Command, U. S. Air Force.)

Higher Than a Kite
Streaking towards his elusive target, the fighter pilot peers into his gun sight, pushes the firing button... a near miss! Within seconds, ground personnel radio him the miss distance and angle. The "enemy fighter" was a new high-speed tow-target, one of several designs under development. Engineering testing of these tow-targets is one of the many jobs of ARDC's Ament Center in Florida. A far cry from the old canvas "sock," the new targets can be towed at speeds above six hundred miles an hour.

Previously, a pilot would count the holes in the canvas sock after the mission and try to do better the next time.

Although this system helped to improve the marksmanship of fighter pilots, it was of little use in testing the accuracy of new electronic gun sights which are a "must" in high-speed aerial combat.

Towed by fast jets, the "three-dimensional" targets can be controlled like model planes and landed with the tow aircraft—that is, unless the "attacker" or his gun sight is so good that nothing is lost of the target except the long towing cable.

Manna From Heaven

It wasn't exactly manna that fell from the skies in North Korea, only aluminum. But to our enemies during the Korean War the scarce metal was as precious as the biblical food from heaven.

The airmail delivery of aluminum supplies occurred every time our jets dropped the external fuel tanks attached to the wings which are used to extend range of the airplane. Without the wing tanks, the jets could go faster, but the enemy received a welcome gift of badly needed aluminum.

The Air Force is now in the process of replacing aluminum wing tanks with plastic ones which shatter on impact. Thus, in the event of future hostilities, we will not only conserve our own aluminum supplies, but there will be no more aluminum-manna for our opponents.

Playing with fire
Fire and smoke belch from the crashed airplane. Using every new technique and equipment, intrepid fire fighters soon bring the blaze under control. "That took too long," says the instructor, looking up from his watch. "Let's try it again."

Scenes like this are routine at the Air Force's Fire Fighting and Crash Rescue School at Lowry Air Force Base, Colorado. Rookie firemen and rescue personnel now practice on unique trainers modeled after actual airplanes.

Made of steel plate and supported by beams sunk into a concrete foundation, the trainers contain escape hatches, gun positions, fuel lines and fuel tanks. By means of outside valves, the instructor can duplicate many types of crash fires.

So far, four experimental models have been constructed by ARDC. They will provide far more realistic training than the present method of burning discarded and badly battered, gasoline-drenched airplanes.

The new trainer will help turn out men who will face their important assignments with the confidence that only thorough practice can instill.

Facts and Figures

A new gray paint, standard on USAF fighters armed with rockets or missiles, is a protective coating to preserve aircraft skin against corrosive effects of hot rocket and missile gases.

Eighty-five planes, featuring racks of electronic testing equipment are used by the Civil Aeronautics Administration to police 100,000 miles of U.S. airways.

In 16 years of operation, one major U. S. airline has safely carried 2,021,483 passengers across

Lake County Debt Highest In Ohio

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio auditor's office says Lake County has the largest per capita debt in the state—almost $336 for each resident.

The figure was obtained by dividing the 1950 census total of 75,979 into the county's total debt of more than $25½ million. The debt is composed of school, municipal, county and township totals.

Morgan County had the smallest per capita debt—$29.

State Aide Dies

COLUMBUS (AP)—William A. Pearson, 61, of Newark, died here last night. He was chief of the franchise tax division, State Department of Education.

more than 20 million miles of ocean—this is equivalent of moving the entire population of Philadelphia to the moon and back 435 times.

One screw of a jet bomber costs half a cent if made of steel and $1.36 if made of titanium, but by using titanium screws, the aircraft manufacturer cuts 99 pounds off the weight of the plane and saves $4,950 in the cost of the aircraft.

This Is What District Vets Want To Know

(Veterans who have a question of interest to ex-servicemen should pass it along to Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer Jim Shea. His offices are in the basement of the courthouse at Circleville.)

Q—My husband is on active service in the Air Force. Our son is in need of an operation. Since we do not have the money for it, can we get this operation at an Air Force base?

A—If the child is 14 years of age or older, it is possible to have the operation done at the Lockbourne Air Force Base. If he is under 14 years of age, the nearest place for the operation is Wright Patterson Field, Dayton.

Q—I have lost my original discharge. I would like to make application for a GI loan. Can I use a certified copy of my discharge for this purpose?

A—No, you cannot. The VA will not accept a certified copy of your discharge for GI loan purposes. If you have lost your original discharge, we will have to make application to the service department for a certificate in lieu of a lost or destroyed discharge. The VA will honor this certificate.

Q—My father has passed away. He was a veteran of World War I. I would like to have a flag for his casket. Where can I get one?

A—This matter should be handled by your undertaker. Upon proper application by the undertaker, a U.S. flag can be secured from the Post Office for use on a casket.

Q—I am moving to a new home. Since I am receiving a compensation check each month from the VA, is it sufficient that I notify the Post Office of my change of address, or must I write a letter to the VA?

A—Neither is sufficient. It is the desire of the VA that change of address be sent to them on an official form VA Form 4-572, merely sending a letter to them notifying them of the change is not advisable.

Q—Is it still possible to get a direct GI loan from the Cincinnati VA office?

A—Yes. Public Law 88 extend-

FARM NEWS and VIEWS

By R. S. SWENSON, County Agent

Demonstration Plots

All Pickaway County farmers are invited to attend a twilight meeting at the Pickaway County Home farm to view differences in demonstration plots seeded last August 11. The date is Monday evening, May 28, between the hours of 7 and 8:30 p. m.

Many county farmers will recall that a 20-acre field was renovated and summer seedings made with the assistance of the county machinery dealers. Various combinations of broom grass, orchard grass, timothy, alfalfa, red clover, late maturing orchard grass, and

Southern alfalfa were used in the demonstration area.

In addition to the different varieties, various methods of preparing the soil and various methods of seeding were also used at the demonstration area. There will be some very striking differences which can be seen on May 28.

One bit of information which may interest some folks which will be shown very definitely is that Southern alfalfa did not do very well under the conditions existing this past winter.

Visitors are also invited to visit the farm pond which was built at the animal shelter on the same date.

Federal Gasoline Refunds

Under a law recently passed by Congress, farmers may make application for refund of the United States gasoline tax.

Farmers must make application on forms which will be available through our office after the 1st of June. At least that is the information we have at the present time.

Change in Title

Word comes from the State Extension Office that the title of the home demonstration agent will be changed to extension county home economics agent, effective next July 1. The move is being made to describe more adequately the duties of a home demonstration agent. The demonstration part of the home economics activity is only a small part of her duties.

The title of the state home demonstration leader will also change to leader, home economics extension, and assistant state 4-H Club leaders will be known as supervisors of 4-H.

Educator Dies

HIRAM (AP)—Frank Norton Harsh, 62, head of the Education Department at Hiram College since 1946, died yesterday in a Hospital in Warren.

Wesleyan Coed Defends Net Title

COLUMBUS (AP)—Shirley Turvey, defending her 1954-55 tournament crowns, and 15 other girls opened quarterfinal action today in the Ohio Women's Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament at Ohio State University.

Turvey, an Ohio Wesleyan coed from Dayton, scored two victories in yesterday's opening round matches as a field of 63 entries from 14 colleges and universities was trimmed to 16. She is first seeded in this year's event.

Gonzales Keeps His Old Mastery

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (AP)—Pancho Gonzales retained his pro tennis mastery over Tony Trabert here last night.

Holder of the world professional tennis singles championship for the last two years, Gonzales defeated the former world amateur champion 6-3, 6-2.

In the opening singles, Pancho Segura defeated Rex Hartwig 8-5. Hartwig and Trabert then teamed to hand the two Panchos an 8-3 defeat in the doubles.

Golfers In 40s Offered Tourney

COLUMBUS (AP)—A tournament for players in their 40s is scheduled for June 28-29 at the Dayton Country Club, the Ohio Golf Assn. has announced.

Bill Margraf, secretary-treasurer of the OGA, said the new tournament would give a competitive outlet to "players who are a little too old for the week-long amateur grind, and not old enough to qualify for the seniors."

Armed Forces Day—1956

"Each year on the third Saturday in May, the Armed Forces of the United States, including the Reserve components and auxiliary services, make a special effort to increase public understanding of our national defense program which is, and has been from the beginning of our Republic, dedicated to achieving and maintaining peace.

"In the present world situation, it is most important that our own people, and others throughout the world who believe as we do, should be cognizant of all aspects of our national strength—the spiritual and the moral, as well as the material and the military—and be reminded of our continuing efforts for peace.

"The purpose of Armed Forces Day is to increase public understanding of, and to emphasize, our peaceful aspirations. I hope that all Americans, as well as many of our friends in other lands, will accept the invitation to visit our Armed Forces at this time."

Ohio Motorists Cut Bloody Swath During 1st 3 Months

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio motorists cut a bloody swath that never during the first three months of this year.

In the first 1956 quarter, the state department of highway safety reported, highway deaths rose 9 per cent, injuries soared 21 per cent and the number of accidents jumped 18 per cent over the first 1955 quarter.

The one bright spot in the whole picture: The death rate for each 100 million car-miles dropped from 5.5 to 5.1.

The report says:

"Traffic accidents on Ohio's streets and highways during the first three months of 1956 caused 442 deaths, 17,381 injuries and property damage amounting to $14,300,000."

Totals for the first three months of 1955 were 405 deaths, 14,306 injuries and property damage of about $11,800,000.

If the property damage trend continues, reports Safety Director U. C. Felty, accident losses will reach 60 million dollars by the end of this year.

Of the 442 deaths in the first three months of 1956, an even 300 were on rural roads, including 206 on state highways.

Only 15 Ohio counties had fewer accidents in the first three months of 1956 than they had in the similar 1955 period. They are Auglaize, Clermont, Clinton, Gallia, Harrison, Knox, Lawrence, Madison, Meigs, Morrow, Noble, Pike, Preble, Union and Van Wert.

Cuyahoga jumped from 5,176 to 6,658, Franklin from 2,388 to 2,622, Hamilton from 2,613 to 2,918, Lucas from 1,756 to 2,377, Mahoning from 956 to 1,311, Montgomery from 1,899 to 2,135, Stark from 1,366 to 1,658 and Summit from 2,258 to 2,582.

Medics Say Man Dead Drunk Plus

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Cemetery worker John W. Newton has started serving 55 days in jail for drunken driving. Amazed medical authorities can hardly believe he's alive to serve the term.

Municipal Judge James S. Blaine noted that a blood test given Newton after his arrest showed up as .480 on the scale. The judge observed that a scale reading of .150 is regarded as drunkenness.

County medical authorities testified that an alcoholic content of more than .400 is "deadly."

Labor Leaders Still Hope For Special Pay

Supplemental Income Plan Given Chance In Ohio By Union Chiefs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Labor leaders count on an ace in the hole to win their Ohio battle for "SUB."

That's short for supplemental unemployment benefits. And that means payments in addition to state jobless compensation.

Administrator James R. Tichenor of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation has ruled that supplemental pay must be deducted from jobless compensation benefits made in the same weeks.

But "SUB" contracts of the CIO Auto Workers with Ford and General Motors in Ohio contain an apparent method of getting the same payments as though Tichenor had ruled favorably.

"SUB" contracts provide for jobless GM and Ford workers to draw 65-60 per cent of their regular pay for a maximum of 26 weeks. Such payments are scheduled to start in a number of states next month. But the alternative payment plan in Ohio contracts could not start before June 1, 1957.

The alternative plan calls for jobless workers to sandwich "SUB" payments between state unemployment benefits so they would fall on different weeks and thus avoid a clash with Tichenor's ruling. Officials gave this illustration:

A worker granted $30 weekly in state benefits, but entitled to $45 weekly under "SUB" normally would draw $30 from the state plus $15 in "SUB" payments each week.

Under the alternative plan, the same worker would draw $30 a week for three weeks but would not apply for a state check on the fourth week. In the fourth week of his idle period he would get $60 in "SUB" payments.

The worker would continue to draw state benefits for another three weeks and a "SUB" check every fourth week during his idle period.

By following that alternating program, officials said the workers would get the same amount, over a longer period, as he would under regular state benefits plus "SUB" payments each week.

State law permits jobless payments for a maximum of 26 weeks during any one year regardless of whether the payments are made on consecutive weeks or not, officials explained.

The state jobless benefit maximum alone is $33 a week plus dependency allowances.

Officials declined to comment on legality of the alternate method of drawing "SUB" payments under the CIO contracts. Nor would they speculate on whether the Legislature convening next January might change state laws to bar such "SUB" payments a year from next June.

The Legislative Service Commission, fact-finding arm of the General Assembly, is making a study of supplemental unemployment pay. Members will report any recommendations to the next legislative session.

Democracy Rules When Jurors Meet

The Pickaway County Bar Association has arranged to have a manual of information and instructions distributed to those called upon for jury service. Because of the importance of the subject with which it deals, The Herald has brought the text of the booklet to all its readers.

Today's concluding installment consists of the last two sections in the 14-section booklet. The material is written directly to those chosen for jury duty.

13. Decision Due, The Charge
After all testimony has been completed and oral arguments by the lawyers come to an end, the judge instructs or charges you with your exact duties.

Accept these charges exactly as they are given, remembering that the judge and the jury are the two impartial parties at the lawsuit.

Instructions are based on the law which already has been decided, perhaps centuries ago, and it must be followed by you, the parties, lawyers and even the judge himself.

If there is a dispute of facts, it is for the jury to decide which side shall prevail. The judge will not tell you which side has the best evidence. That is YOUR job.

14. The Jury Room
When the judge has completed his instructions, you are escorted to the jury room. He normally will send along the exhibits and the legal papers which have been filed in the case. If he doesn't and they are wanted, feel free to ask for them.

A foreman should be chosen from among your number by yourselves to act as your presiding officer and chairman of your discussions.

The next step, discussing evidence and working toward a verdict, cannot be defined so expressly pointed out. It will depend entirely upon the jurors and the case.

But each juror must be given a chance to express his or her ideas and discussion should move along in a channel toward the most intelligent determination of the issues.

Discussion should include an exchange of ideas and a juror should not hesitate to change his views if he or she feels a change of opinion.

But no juror should be pressured into changing his mind and each has the right to be firm in his beliefs if it is an honest conviction. Nor should a juror change his mind just to be a "good fellow" or to "go along" with the crowd. Each juror's decision must be independent and solely the belief of the individual.

When all the jurors are agreed that they have reached their final and unalterable decision, you will give the signal that you are ready to return to the courtroom.

The judge will ask, and the foreman will answer, with your verdict.

You then will be dismissed. It is hoped that your conscience will be clear and that it has guided you fairly in the great responsibility you have exercised; that you will leave the courthouse with the warm glow of knowing that yours was a job well done in an intelligent, honest and unbiased manner; and that you have contributed your best effort to our democratic way of government.

Both you and our country will profit by your experience—if your job was well done.

Vivien Kellums To Seek Ouster Of GOP Senator

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Miss Vivien Kellums, who battles federal income tax laws and the Connecticut Republican state organization with equal vigor, announced that she will seek the GOP nomination for U. S. senator.

She wants the Senate seat now held by Prescott Bush (R), whom top party leaders are backing for the nomination. She is the first to enter the race against him.

Miss Kellums, 59, who operates a small cable grip factory in Stonington, first gained nationwide prominence about 10 years ago over her refusal to withhold income tax payments from her employees' pay. Her frequent challenges to the Treasury Department to "sue me" went for naught, however. The government put a lien on her bank account, and eventually she resumed paying the tax.

Pennsy Turnpike Tolls Changing

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—New toll schedules for the 400-mile Pennsylvania Turnpike, featuring a 41 per cent boost for passenger cars and a 21 per cent cut for trucks, have been announced.

Passenger car toll from the Ohio line to the Delaware River bridge will be increased to $5.50.

Truck tolls vary according to the size of the vehicle but for a truck weighing under 62,000

Cleveland Due To Get Clinton Air Squadron

CLEVELAND (AP)—Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, commander of the 1st U. S. Air Force, says a reserve troop carrier squadron will be moved into Cleveland Hopkins Airport by next December.

The general, here to attend an Armed Forces Day luncheon, said the 375th Troop Carrier Squadron of the 302nd wing, would be transferred here from Clinton County Airport near Wilmington.

He said the squadron would use one of two hangers at headquarters of the old 433rd troop carrier wing at Schlegel Air Force Base. The Cadillac tank plant is now using the hanger for storage and maintenance.

It was announced that the squadron will move out of Cleveland following completion of an Air Force facility in the Akron-Canton area, possibly within the next two or three years.

The city of Cleveland has granted the squadron use of Cleveland Hopkins Airport runways provided the field be used only as a temporary measure until the Air Force gets its own base and that the squadron will not interfere with regular air traffic.

pounds the fare for the 360-mile trip will drop from $23.80 to $18.95.

Red Pressure Building For Cuts In Arms

British Laborites Ask Why London Slow In Matching Soviet Slash

LONDON (AP)—Soviet pressure on Britain and the United States to match the cuts Russia says she is making in her armed forces drew mixed reaction today in London and Washington.

Fifty-five opposition Labor members of Parliament hailed the Soviet announcement and called for an early end to Britain's draft, sharp cuts in defense spending and swift action to secure a world disarmament pact.

The Laborites signed a declaration saying the Soviet announcement makes it "clear that the challenge of communism is economic, social and political, not military, and that the Soviet Union wants peace as much as any country in the world."

Prime Minister Eden himself has welcomed Russia's announced arms cuts, but he has emphasized the Soviets merely are copying the Western allies who were the first to reduce their armies after World War II. The Eden government also has made clear presently there is no justification for a major reduction in the over-all defense program because the dangers of war have not yet vanished.

IN WASHINGTON, Defense Secretary Wilson said the United States expects to maintain armed forces of their present size for years to come. Moreover, he added, these forces would be given new weapons and equipment which will make the maximum use of firepower.

"There is no clear indication," Wilson said in an Armed Forces Day speech, "that the world situation has improved to the point where we can importantly modify our policy of strength for the long pull."

However, Harold E. Stassen, the President's special adviser on disarmament, announced that Eisenhower's special task force of military, nuclear and industrial leaders would gather May 29 to analyze the implications of the Soviet military reduction.

Their discussion will be tied in with the failure of the recent London disarmament talks. Stassen evidenced much less skepticism than other officials have expressed concerning the Russian announcement of military manpower cuts. He said it could be "a desirable dividend" for President Eisenhower's peace policy. He disagreed, however, with suggestions that he might be out of step with the White House and State Department, both of which had voiced essentially negative reactions.

MOSCOW followed up its announcement of a slash of 1,200,000 men and 375 warships in the next year by calling on the two strongest Western allies to match it.

"Why does not Britain follow the Soviet example since so much is being said about the crippling effects of the military burden on Britain's economy?" Moscow radio asked.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda in Moscow made a similar call on the United States and ridiculed Secretary of State Dulles for his reaction to the Soviet announcement.

"It is clear to any child that the less men in the armed forces the more workers available for construction of new homes, machines, roads, hospitals and schools," Pravda said. "What has Dulles seen in these motives that is criminal? What is suspicious or dangerous about it?"

Dulles had said the cutback would not markedly reduce Soviet military power.

Credit Clampdown May Curb Business

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Weeks said today the Federal Reserve Board's latest clampdown on credit may press business somewhat.

Weeks, meeting here with his 165-member Business Advisory Council, said that because of its possible effect on business expansion, he disagrees with the reserve board's action last month in increasing discount rates. Such action tends to reduce borrowings by increasing interest.

Armed Forces Day—1956

MASSED PERSONNEL of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard strike a symbolic pose for the annual observance of Armed Forces Day.

Army Said 'Declaring War' On Air Force In New Fuss

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—The St. Paul Pioneer Press says that the U. S. Army has "declared war" on the Air Force.

The Press said that, in a "mischievous" great interservice fight over armed forces unification, the Army is calling defense policy "fallacious" and charging that it will lead only to "national disaster."

The newspaper said the row was expected to flare publicly in the near future. It said the Army position reveals:

1. Basic differences of professional opinion between the Army and the Air Force over how future wars will be fought.
2. A jurisdictional struggle between the two services over who should run the guided missile program.
3. Existence of an Army guided missile named "Jupiter" now operational, having a reputed range of 1,500 miles.

4. STATEMENTS by the Army that the Air Force is failing miserably in its mission to give the Army logistical support in such vital operations as troop-carrying and servicing.

5. An Air Force public relations document in which Air Force information specialists are instructed to "flood" the American public with facts about the Air Force and which outlines a high-powered publicity campaign to be undertaken on behalf of that branch of the service.

Army officers at the Pentagon, and, to a lesser degree, civilian heads of Army departments, have long been smoldering over what the Pioneer Press said they consider "favoritism" by the administration toward the Air Force and what is termed the "increasing imbalance" of American defense forces.

The Army says, "the continuing ascendancy of the other armed forces, patently to the detriment of the Army, promises to gnaw at the vitals of the Army until, in a few years at most, the effectiveness of the Army may be reduced to virtual impotence."

U.S. Prevents Shipment To Israel Army

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. customs officers have blocked shipment of 21 military vehicles to Israel on grounds they were not covered by an export license issued for spare parts.

State Department press officer Lincoln White disclosed yesterday the half trucks were taken off an Israeli freighter in New York Harbor a week ago Thursday. He said the ship sailed the next day.

According to White, customs officials found there was no valid export license covering the vehicles. He said Israel purchasing authorities had an export license for half track spare parts, not for whole vehicles. White said he saw nothing dishonest in the situation, but he declined to express any opinion when asked whether it was "attempted smuggling."

The Israeli Embassy issued a statement last night saying that "on May 11 shippers commissioned by the Israel government loaded certain surplus vehicles destined to be used in Israel as spare parts."

The embassy said the shipment was made against a license from the State Department's munitions control division "for spare parts in the amount of $150,000."

Milk Chief Says He Dislikes Milk

He doesn't like milk.

"I'm one of the few with whom it disagrees," said Turner adding:

"I'll take coffee."

NEW FARM BILL NEARS FINAL OK IN CONGRESS

Nation Flexing Military Muscle

Armed Forces Day Celebration To Exhibit 'Power For Peace'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation was flexing its military muscles today in a display of men, aircraft, guns and missiles in celebration of Armed Forces Day.

Secretary of Defense Wilson set the tone for the demonstration, saying it would be an "exhibition of power for peace and in no sense for intimidation or aggression."

Wilson told a banquet last night that the United States means to keep its armed forces at about present size and to give them even better equipment and firepower. "There is no clear indication," Wilson said, "that the world situation has improved to the point where we can importantly modify our policy of strength."

At least one part of the planned demonstration of U. S. military might was scaled down, apparently to avoid a jarring note in present talk about possible world disarmament.

THE AIR FORCE had planned to send a record mass flight of 216 B-47 medium all-jet bombers over the nation's capital and several other Eastern cities. However, Wilson ordered the flyover reduced to 45 bombers, one wing in strength. And the flight plan was limited to Washington and neighboring Baltimore.

The day's demonstrations centered in Washington, where everything from military medical equipment to ballistic missiles was ready for display at Bolling Air Force Base.

Open to public inspection for the first time were the Air Force Snark long-range missile and the Navy's Regulus missile.

At Selfridge Air Force Base in Michigan the Army put on display its own candidate for medium range ballistic missile attention, the Redstone. In Washington and elsewhere civilians got a chance for closeup inspection of the Army's Nike missile.

This year's Armed Forces Day celebration for the first time was literally global in extent. An Air Force plane planned to fly over the North Pole and attempt to radio greetings to Navy men at the South Pole.

3 Men Killed In Gunfight

Robber Slain After Cop, Detective Die

CLEVELAND (AP)—A robber and a patrolman died in a burst of gunfire near Public Square today, and a detective was fatally hurt. The patrolman was Joseph Haydu, 30.

The robber was not immediately identified. Frank Begin, a store detective for the Higbee Co., was taken to Lutheran Hospital with chest wounds and his death was reported a few minutes later.

Begin was a brother of Bishop Floyd L. Begin of the Cleveland Roman Catholic Diocese. The robber was shot down at East Ninth and Webster.

Scores of clerks, customers and shoppers witnessed portions of the running gunfight. The incident began in the S. S. Kresge Co., which has entrances on both Euclid Avenue and Prospect Avenue, near the Square.

Police said Patrolman Haydu was shot in the heart by the robber there. A clerk, Miss Martha Mathews, was reported to have received a head injury.

The gunman ran out of the store, and into the Public Square entrance of the Higbee Co., a department store.

Begin was shot inside the store which he served as a detective. Mrs. Ann Larsen, a witness, said, "I saw Mr. Begin running after the man. I heard a shot. I ducked. When I looked up Mr. Begin was lying on the floor."

Next the man ran from the Higbee store into Prospect Avenue and turned eastward, where he was shot down near Webster Court.

Boy Scouts Enter Frog In Jump Test For German School

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP)—Two frogs are entered for a grammar school class at Mannheim-Rheinau Germany, in the International Frog Olympics which holds preliminary jumps today.

Deutschland Freund and Hans, the two German entries, are not German frogs, but were entered by two local Boy Scouts, Stan Grunder and Harold Drummond.

They went out and caught them after a letter arrived from Valentine Gremm, teacher at the Mannheim school, saying his class had wanted to enter frogs but hadn't been able to catch any.

Foreign entries now have risen to 34 from 15 countries. Seven are entered from Hawaii. The rest of the 400-odd hoppers entered for tomorrow's finals are native American frogs.

Sen. Byrd Seeks OK On Road Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) said today his Senate Finance Committee probably will approve the taxes to pay for a big highway construction program.

The committee closed two days of public hearings on the tax feature of the bill yesterday. Byrd has called a closed committee session Monday for votes on these sections.

He reported it was possible the bill could be called up on the Senate floor later next week.

Sen. Long (D-La.), a finance member, questioned whether any new taxes were necessary for the roadbuilding program. He said that motorists and truck operators now pay $2½ billion annually in various taxes. This would pay even for the greatly stepped up construction program envisaged in pending legislation.

Byrd said much of the present revenue is used for other purposes and would have to be replaced through other taxes if all of it were earmarked for roads.

The House voted for $14.8 billion of additional revenues over a 16-year period to help finance the federal share of the program. Byrd said he expects his committee to approve that amount.

Byrd noted that the bulk of the new money would come from raising the federal gasoline tax from 2 to 3 cents a gallon.

Ohio State Gets New Money Grant

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio State University has another $100,000 and three more years to continue its program of improving school administration.

The W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich., announced the new grant. It is in addition to a $289,000 grant in 1952 which Ohio State has used for a school-community development study which ends next month.

Like previous grants, the new distribution of $2½ million went to 29 universities and agencies "for aid to the schools of America through improved preparation of school administrators."

She Blames Cake Flop On Altitude

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP)—The lady who called down manager Bill Lavocchia wanted to know the altitude of Blacksburg.

"About 2,000 feet," replied Lavocchia.

"Are you sure it isn't close to 5,000 feet?" she asked.

"No, only 2,000."

"Then something else must be wrong with my cake."

BLINDED AND SCARRED, Victor Riesel, crusading labor columnist, tells a hospital bed news conference that Congress should make a thorough investigation of "sleazy labor racketeers." Bearing the red blotches caused by sulphuric acid thrown at him six weeks ago, Riesel warned that unless something is done soon, the public faces a "grim future" at the hands of labor mobsters.

Oregon Democrats Prefer Adlai Over Estes In Primary

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Democrats gave Adlai Stevenson a boost toward the presidential nomination and Republicans put up a lusty cheer for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket in returns today from Oregon's primary election.

Stevenson, pointing toward bigger game in Florida and California, stayed a consistent pace in front of Sen. Estes Kefauver in their write-in contest for 16 Democratic delegates in yesterday's balloting.

More than half of the party's voters penciled in their presidential choice.

But the presidential race, which required that the voters write in their choice, drew fewer votes than the senatorial contest of Sen. Wayne Morse and Woody Smith which had attracted small pre-election attention. Republicans, needing only to put an X on their presidential ballot, showered unopposed President Eisenhower with a high popularity vote. He received a second term blessing from 87 per cent of those casting Republican ballots.

What's more, with only a minimum of pre-election prodding, nearly 20 per cent of the Republicans took the extra trouble to write in Vice President Nixon for re-nomination.

Former Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay, defeated in eight Oregon elections, led Phil Hitchcock in a hard-fought race for the Republican senatorial nomination. The winner will face Democratic Sen. Wayne Morse in the fall general election.

MORSE, WHO bolted the Republican party in the 1952 presidential campaign and joined the Democratic party last year, easily won the Democratic nomination. He rolled up a 5-1 margin over Woody Smith, a Hood River service station operator.

No cross-voting by Republicans and Democrats was allowed. Entering the state too late, Stevenson and Kefauver did not appear on the ballot, and the response to their write-in appeals was considered surprisingly good.

The write-in by Democrats for President and Republicans for vice president is binding on the state's delegations to the respective party conventions. Democrats, busy enough marking as many as five separate ballots, didn't indicate anyone for the runningmate spot.

Stevenson's managers risked a possible setback in the first western primary against the help they figured a victory would give him in his approaching primary battles for Florida's 28 delegates May 29 and the 68 delegates California will award June 5, the final election test before the party's presidential nominating convention in Chicago Aug. 13.

Police said she admitted yesterday that her son, Richard, hit her on the head with a rock and drove her car about two miles from the restaurant, where it was abandoned. The admission was made, officers said, after her son was questioned at school.

Richard admitted that $631 was hidden in a movie projector in the attic at the Morefield home.

Mrs. Morefield told police she had spent all but $431 of the league's money and intended to pay it back, but planned the phony robbery when she couldn't raise the rest of the money. Asked what she did with the money, she said she "just piddled it away on things."

Police said it was up to the bowling league to decide whether to press embezzlement charges.

French Mob Halts Troops; 40 Hurt

GRENOBLE, France (AP)—Some 40 persons were injured last night as mobs battled police and smashed railway equipment in an effort to keep French troops from going to strife-torn North Africa.

Police said they arrested 25 persons and finally restored order after demonstrators had blocked switches with iron bars and smashed rails here.

Police said the demonstration was organized by the "Youth Committee for a Peaceful Settlement of the Algerian Problem." They labeled it a pro-Communist organization.

Senate Sends Measure Back For House Nod

Aiken Says He Plans Urging Eisenhower To Sign Latest Version

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders expressed hope today a new farm bill will become law next week without further controversy.

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) said he would recommend that President Eisenhower sign the measure which the Senate passed by a voice vote last night, if the House accepts a series of changes the Senate made.

Whether the House would agree was not immediately apparent, but Aiken and Sen. Anderson (D-NM) forecast such action, and Sen. Ellender (D-La.) spoke of getting the measure to the White House Tuesday or Wednesday.

"I think we now have as good a bill as it is possible to get at this session," said Aiken, who frequently speaks for the administration on farm matters.

The bill replaces a more comprehensive measure Eisenhower vetoed April 16. As its principal feature it authorizes the $1.2 billion soil bank program he requested as a means of paying farmers to take surplus crop land out of production.

NEITHER THE Senate nor the House approved, however, Eisenhower's request for authority to pay farmers for a year a portion of the money to which they would be entitled for compliance next year.

The measure still includes some provisions to which Eisenhower has objected, but Senate compromises on feed grain supports and parity levels tended to bring those features closer to Eisenhower's views.

Missing from the bill are requirements for rigid, higher support prices, a two-way system of figuring parity prices and many other provisions which brought on Eisenhower's veto of the earlier measure. Parity is a price determined by law to be fair to farmers in relation to their costs.

In its effort to avoid another battle with the House, the Senate at one point backed up and rejected an amendment it had just adopted to put a dollar ceiling on price support and soil bank payments to any one farmer.

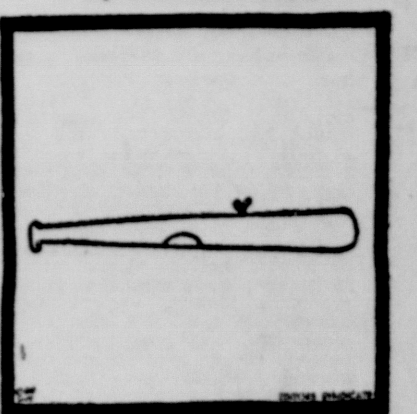

The reversal involved tangled parliamentary maneuvering, but the Senate agreed after being told inclusion of such ceilings almost certainly would force the bill into a long-drawn-out conference with the House. The Senate had adopted ceilings in the earlier omnibus bill, but the House rejected them.

The Senate voted 73-14 to support feed grain prices this year no restrictions on planting. The feed grains are barley, rye, oats

"GNAT ON A BAT"

It's possible that the Gnat in this Droodle is a Rookie trying out for the National League (known as the Little League). But it's more likely that the Gnat is frustrated and wants to swat back at people for a change. Frankly, I doubt if he can handle this type word and what he should do is crawl thru the yellow pages of his Classified Phone book and find a good Psychiatrist before he goes completely Bugs. Which only proves that people don't have a monopoly on being coo-coo. Of course it isn't as easy for insects to go off their rockers as it is for people, because insects don't have to listen to Rock 'n Roll music or pay Income Taxes—or read these columns.

3 Students Among 5 Dead In Collision

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Three University of Michigan students and a Detroit couple were killed in the head-on smashup of two automobiles on U. S. 12 eight miles east of here last night.

A fourth student was injured and physicians expressed doubt he would live.

The students, all in formal dress and a gay mood, were en route to dinner at an outlying restaurant prior to a college dance.

The Detroit couple was en route to the colorful tulip festival at Holland, Mich.

Killed instantly were: D. Howard Salter, 63, and his wife, Lena, 58, of Detroit; Keith Ryan, 21, of Toledo; William B. McKean Jr., 23, of Parris Island, S. C., and Nancy Robson, 19, of Pompano, Fla.

Thomas Bernaky, 24, of East Cleveland, was the student critically injured.

Deputy Sheriff Roy Tice said Ryan was driving the students' car, which his father had given him only Thursday. The father, Joseph Ryan, is research director for Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Co.

Senate Sends Measure Back For House Nod

and grain sorghums. They would be eligible for price supports next year only if supports are provided for commercial corn grown outside acreage allotments.

THE HOUSE had voted permanent supports for feed grains, based on the levels offered for commercial corn. It also voted to make growers of feed grains eligible for soil bank benefits—an action the Senate reversed as part of a compromise worked out by Aiken and Sen. Holland (D-Fla.).

Both House and Senate agreed on a $500 million fund to support prices of perishable commodities through purchase programs, and on $200 million to help dispose of surplus products.

The Senate agreed to retain through 1957 present parity formulas for wheat, corn and peanuts.

Newer formulas would reduce support levels. The Senate Agriculture committee had voted a two-year extension of the higher level, but the Senate accepted the one-year compromise.

As the bill cleared the Senate it included a number of features not asked by the administration but demanded by farm area senators, both Republicans and Democrats.

Among these are:

1. A two-price program for rice, under which that part used in this country and Cuba would bring higher prices than the balance for export and other uses. The program would require approval by the secretary of agriculture before it goes into operation.

2. A limit on reduction of the cotton acreage allotment within any state to one per cent during each of the next two years.

3. Authority to sell up to 100 million bushels of surplus government wheat annually at lower prices for livestock feed.

20 Cops Swoop Down On 2 Boys

CLEVELAND (AP)—Twenty policemen armed with riot guns and tear gas who surrounded an abandoned stable in which a shotgun was being fired were somewhat embarrassed yesterday when out walked two frightened boys.

Patrolmen answered a call from a woman who said shotgun pellets were striking the windows of her home.

When the boys, aged 10 and 11, saw the squad of police and their arsenal they climbed out of the first floor window through which they had entered.

Officers said the boys had a shotgun and a basket of about 100 shells. The pair was taken to the detention home.

Egypt To Buy Arms 'Any Place'

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP)—Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser said today Egypt "is free to buy arms from any place we like and in any quantity we like."

Speaking to a class of graduating naval cadets, Nasser vowed to "resist with all our force" any foreign efforts to limit the quantity of arms Egypt receives.

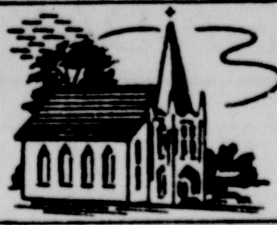

Nasser spoke as reports circulated that Egypt is discussing the purchase of arms from Communist China as a means of circumventing a possible U. N. embargo. Egypt has just extended recognition to Red China, which is not a U. N. member.

Aid Cut Expected

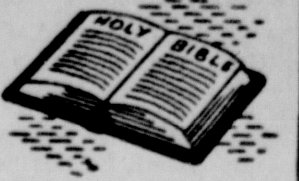

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) predicts the House Foreign Affairs Committee will vote to chop up to $750 million off President Eisenhower's $4.9 billion foreign aid request.

St. Philip's Readies Whitsunday Honors For All Services

St. Philip's Church will observe Whitsunday this week at Sunday morning services commemorating the coming of The Holy Ghost upon the Apostles, as related in the first chapter of the Book of The Acts of the Apostles.

Beginning at the 8 a. m. celebration of The Holy Eucharist, the "prophets" for Whitsunday from the Book of Common Prayer will be used. The altar will be vested in red, signifying the "tongues of flame" used as symbols of the descent of the Holy Ghost.

Whitsunday, called Pentecost by some parts of the church, is celebrated throughout the Anglican Communion as one of the three major festivals of the church year calendar. It is a "Holy Day of Obligation" for all Anglicans, when all the faithful are urged to receive the Blessed Sacrament.

During the 9 a. m. family service, which is a weekly event at St. Philip's Church, the children of the parish family and their parents will hear the story of the first Whitsunday as recorded in the New Testament. They will be addressed on the subject of "The Holy Ghost in You".

There will also be a celebration of The Holy Eucharist at 10:30 a. m., at which time the Rector will speak to the parish concerning "The Holy Ghost, The Comforter". The title of the address is also the title of the offertory anthem to be sung by the choir, with solo part by Mrs. Clayton Vaughan.

During the celebration of The Holy Eucharist, the Rector will be assisted by Lawrence Miga and Stephen Ater at the altar as server and assistant server. Leading in the singing of the hymns for the day and the anthem will be the combined parish choir, composed of members of both the senior and junior choirs of the parish, under the direction of Mr. John O'Donnell and Mrs. Howard B. Moore. Crucifer for this service will be David Hutzelman. The flag bearers will be Clayton Vaughan Jr. and Geoffrey Denham.

Calvary EUB Sets Service Honoring Birthday Of Church

The birthday of the Christian Church will be commemorated in the worship service at Calvary EUB Church Sunday. The sermon will be titled, "Heavenly Power for Earthly People".

It will call attention to the overflowing and overwhelming experience that is for each Christian at his own Pentecost. It will also point out this experience leads us to an all inclusive participation, both physical and spiritual, in the opportunities of the Christian life.

The hymns that will be used are: "O Worship the Lord in the Beauty of Holiness", "Holy Ghost with Light Divine" and "Take My Life and Let It Be".

The annual congregational meeting will be held following the worship service, at which time officers for the coming year will be elected. The Sunday school class session will follow.

The children's department services include Sunday school class at 9 a. m., junior church at 10 a. m.

Sparks' Residence Set For Blessing By Episcopalians

Sunday afternoon, members of St. Philip's Parish Family will join with the Rector in the blessing of the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sparks.

The order of service will be taken from the Book of Offices of the Episcopal Church, as set forth by the presiding Bishop of the church and used for services and certain occasions not provided for in the Book of Common Prayer. The office sets apart a house for the use as a Christian home for particular members of the parish family and asks God's blessing upon the house and those who dwell there.

Members of the parish wishing to attend the service will be welcome and should meet at the church at 3 p. m. From there, they and the Rector will then proceed to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Sparks, just north of Route 36 and east of Circleville.

Sunday Schedule Of Services Listed For City Lutherans

At the 8:30 and 10:45 a. m. services Sunday in Trinity Lutheran Church, Pastor Carl G. Zehner will present the sermon, "The Power of Pentecost", taken from John 1:12.

The adult choir, directed by Carl C. Leist, will lead the singing at the early service. The congregation will sing "Holy, Holy, Holy", "Come, Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove" and "Holy Spirit, Hear Us".

At the late service, the youth choir will provide the music, under the direction of Truman Eberly.

Why Should God's Ministers Wear Uniforms?

There's no law in the Episcopal Church which says that a clergyman should wear a "backwards collar". There's no requirement that he and his service assistants should wear vestments.

"All right," you ask, "why do they do it?" We could answer by saying simply that it is custom, tradition. But there's more reason than that. One is that although he's still human, and you'll find that most Episcopal clergymen are very human, he is called to a peculiar and exacting task. The very fact that he's in "uniform" makes him available to be called upon to perform many services, to be of help to many people he could never otherwise reach. To a person in spiritual need that "uniform" can be as helpful as is the uniform of the "cop" on the corner.

We like clerical dress (and service vestments, too) because we feel they symbolize the importance of the task, and not the individual performing the task. The job is the thing, not the doer of the job.

In the Episcopal Church, you'll probably find a greater proportion of "church followers" and a smaller proportion of "preacher followers" than you'll find in any other church. The church and its worship are more important than the preacher.

Come and worship with us — soon — in the Episcopal Church near you. You'll see what we mean.

Methodist Choirs Exchange Times For This Sunday

In the duplicate worship services at 8:15 and 10:45 at First Methodist Church Sunday morning, the Rev. Charles D. Reed will use for his sermon subject the question asked of Simon Peter at the trial of Jesus, "Are You Not Also One of His Disciples?"

The Scripture Lesson will be read from The Gospel According to Saint John, the eighteenth chapter, verses fifteen through twenty-seven.

The junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. James Hodges, will sing the Negro spiritual "Steal Away to Jesus", and also, "My God and King", by Porter, in the 10:45 a. m. service. The adult choir, under the direction of Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, will sing, "Bless the Lord", by Ivanoff, in the early service.

The choirs are exchanging times of their service for this one Sunday.

Hymns for the service will include "He Leadeth Me", by Gilmore, and "Soldiers of Christ Arise", by Charles Wesley. Mrs. Ervin Leist will be at the organ in both services.

Officers of the junior and senior Methodist Youth Fellowship will be formally installed in the second service. Officers for the senior MYF are: president, Elaine Woodward; vice-president, Austin Laughlin; secretary, Flo Goldschmidt; and treasurer, Jo Goldschmidt.

Program areas include the following:

"Christian Faith" - Carol Ann Johnson and Deena Musselman; "Christian Witness" - Carole Weiler and Cheryl Evans; "Christian Outreach" - George Meyers and Sara Wantz; "Christian Citizenship" - Jerry Wolford and Judy Barnhill; and "Christian Fellowship" - Carolyn Bell and Diane Johnson.

Flag Presented

The local Veterans of Foreign Wars Post has presented a new American flag to the Salem Methodist Church at Meade. Post Commander Darrel R. Courtright made the presentation to the Rev. Lester Taylor, pastor of the church.

The height of the Statue of Liberty from base to torch is 151 feet, one inch.

This morning at the market a reporter questioned me:

Q. You're a home maker and mother?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you and your family attend Church?

A. Every week, unless prevented by illness.

Q. Surely you don't take the children when they're small?

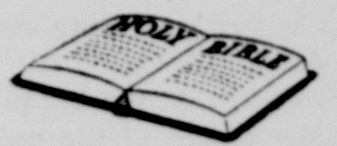

A. Oh yes. It's been proved that habits formed during the first five years establish a pattern for life.

Q. When it's raining or snowing doesn't it often seem best to stay home?

A. No. Bad weather doesn't usually keep us from doing other things we want to do. Besides, children go to school on rainy days so why not to Church and Bible School?

Q. Then you feel regular worship is good for a family?

A. Not only good but necessary. Religious training is the fourth R, and the most vital part of our learning to live.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

IGNORE RED BOMB TESTS

PROBABLY any European of average intelligence and enlightenment would say, off-hand in the absence of statistical information — that the United States takes the lead in exploding experimental bombs.

For that matter, probably the great majority of Americans have the same vague idea. Why? Because of a world-wide clamor to that effect.

The U. S. News and World Report for May 11 publishes exact statistics which show that Russia is the chief "offender," if such experiments are to be considered an offense.

The United States, in the past 11 years, has had 12 tests of nuclear devices, including 61 atomic explosions. But in the past 7 years Russia has had 12 tests, and the number of explosions is kept secret. The United States tests were announced in advance, as to time and place. This practice, of course, enables people to keep out of the way of blasts and fall-out. But Russia's tests have all been secret, with no advance warnings.

Despite these figures, the air is full of protests against American series of explosions, and Krichna Menon, the ubiquitous and obviously anti-American delegate from India to the United Nations threatened to bring the United States before the World Court if the Eniwetok tests were made.

A weird corollary to all this hullabaloo is that the United States is the putatively inexhaustible reservoir of financial aid to underprivileged nations, while Russia keeps its treasury tightly buttoned up, so far as foreign aid is concerned. Apparently the giving away of untold billions of dollars doesn't have the effect upon world sentiment that many people seem to think.

A WORRISOME THOUGHT

HAROLD E. STASSEN, President Eisenhower's special assistant for disarmament, has put into words what many have been thinking. What happens when the secret of making an H-bomb, now possessed by Britain, Russia and the United States, is the possession of all nations?

Stassen is worried because the secret may gradually spread before a workable disarmament program is achieved. He indicates the secret will begin to trickle around the world in about one more year. Then the world, without absolute safeguards, will be in danger.

It is one thing to know that the big powers are so thoroughly aware of the awful potentialities of the big bomb that they will not use it. But some of the little, fanatical, have-not nations, oppressed by generations of poverty, might have no qualms. They might reason that it made little difference whether they survived or not so long as they had a chance to overawe somebody else to their advantage.

The optimistic phases of it is that the probability of the small nations getting the bomb may reduce Russia's obstinacy as to the machinery of disarmament controls. The thought of fanatical small nations starting an atomic war can be no more welcome to Kremlin inmates than to anybody else.

AGE OF BRILLIANCE

ON THE BASIS of predictions made by Gen. David Sarnoff, chairman of the Board of the Radio Corporation of America, the electric age is only now coming into its own. He sees in the offing an electronic light that will enable man to see vast distances at night, TV sets that will consist of multiple flat screens activated by a single control box no larger than a jewel case, electronic air conditioners, and magnetic tape recorders of television programs.

Stretching his prescience a bit more, General Sarnoff foresees wrist-watch radios powered by atomic batteries, vest-pocket radio telephones and electric shavers the size of a penknife. Nor does the radio pioneer place these developments in the distant future. Children born today, he predicts, will see these devices in use before they have cast their first vote.

The magic of a push-button world is being increasingly revealed. With each revolutionary advance man finds more of life's chores done for him with little or no effort on his part.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Among my recent lighter reading is a book entitled "Our Daily Poison," written by Leonard Wickenden. It is not a who-dunit nor a moral tract. Rather, it is a description of the poisons which we consume as a product of industrialization, standardization and modernization. The book does not list all of them, as no book could.

In the good old days when mother spent much of her day cooking and baking, the house always smelled of exciting things to eat, and when we died, it was from something usual like chronic indigestion. In those days when the doctor came to the house, his first command was, "Stick your tongue out."

Apparently, just by looking at the tongue, he could solve all problems and he usually did by prescribing castor oil for one horn of the dilemma and paregoric for the other. Somehow the human race survived both, as we are here to attest, although by available statistics it should have been otherwise.

Today, according to this book, we eat the products of DDT, Fluorides, Hormones, Chlorine dioxide and the Lord knows what else. Also we vaporize and fumigate and inhale and fill our lungs with poisons from smoke-stacks, from exhausts, and from cigars, cigarettes with or without complex superstructures to get rid of the smoke in spite of the fact that the only sound reason for smoking is to inhale the smoke.

It is a fascinating little book, particularly its attack on store bread which I don't like anyhow, preferring the home-baked or a sour rye or a pumpernickel, none of which I am now permitted to eat because I enjoy them. When one falls into hands of doctors, their rule is, if the patient enjoys it, it is against the diet. But store bread, I do not like, even for a diet.

When I ate for pleasure, I used to cut my bread fairly thick. Nowadays, most bread is cut by machine and comes out about an eighth of an inch thick which is too thin. They even do it to Viennese bread which thus cannot take butter without crumbling the bread. It is a tough life!

However, the author of this book does not quarrel about that. His argument is that the best ingredients are milled out of the grain and are fed to hogs and cattle. If they are good enough for hogs, why not for people? That is a very good question because hogs are fed scientifically, while humans, in this country, eat as much for pleasure as for good health.

In fact, most of the breads which I have been instructed to eat, at one time or another, for good health, such as gluten bread, I let stand in the refrigerator until someone comes along and throws the loaf out. The theory used to be that I might be frightened into eating what is good for me — I'd sooner starve.

At any rate, what the author of this book particularly objects to is chlorine dioxide which is a maturing substance. They used to put Agene into bread, only to discover that it was a wrong thing to do. Now, they use chlorine dioxide. It sure was marvelous how the old folks took yeast, flour, water, eggs and sometimes a little milk or sugar and made bread, without a maturing substance. And it tasted good—oh, so good!

That is something that few of the younger generation know anything about. They may know the precise difference between the Marxism of Kautsky and Lenin, but not about the virtues of home-baked bread as compared to store bread wrapped in cellophane and full of chemicals.

Do you know what a polyoxyethylene is? See, even the Food and Drug Administration is not too strong for it in bread, but glycerides—well, you have to put something in store bread or it will dry up and have to be given to the Salvation Army or ground up into bread crumbs and canned. So they put a softener into the bread to keep it soft and fresh even on the third or fourth day.

Anyhow, I read the book with great interest and satisfaction.

I should worry. I'm on a diet anyhow to get skinny and the less I eat, the skinnier I'll get. When men wore whiskers and looked strong, they were not skinny.

SHOWDOWN FOR UNIONS

SINCE THE merger of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, organized labor has had the poorest showing in recruiting new members since elections to determine bargaining units first began in 1936.

During the first quarter of 1956, petitions for representation elections totaled 2,211. Such elections, supervised by the National Labor Relations Board to see if workers want to be represented by a union, succeeded in only 64 per cent of the cases. This is the lowest rate of success in 20 years.

Unions may have run into a line of resistance that will be difficult to overcome.

CHAPTER 26
ON THE FORMER occasions when Val had seen Captain Donovan he had seemed to her a genial, kindly man, a typical picture of an elderly ship's captain with his sea-dog's walk, his red face and bristling gray hair. But that morning on the stroke of eleven when Dirk and she were ushered into his cabin there was no trace of geniality.

"Sit down, both of you," he said. "This is—hum, hum, a most unpleasant business, isn't it?" Val was surprised not only at his choice of words, but by his manner. She could see that Dirk was too far, he glanced sharply toward the Captain, a look of inquiry on his face. It was a little later that she became aware that Bruce was also in the cabin.

"Good morning, Doctor," Dirk said. He spoke quietly, amiably. Bruce turned. "Good morning, Nurse Alison. Good morning, Hanson," he said formally. The Captain cleared his throat and said again gruffly, "This is—hum—a most unpleasant business, isn't it?"

"A tragic business, I agree, but I don't quite understand your use of the word unpleasant, Captain," Dirk interposed quietly. "Well, I'll be blunt," the Captain said. "Nothing can be gained by beating about the bush. The doc here—I mean Doctor Harridan—has refused to sign the death certificate."

"He has refused to sign the death certificate?" Val echoed incredulously. Suddenly the whole thing had taken on a nightmare quality.

"Exactly," the Captain nodded. "You appreciate what that means, don't you, Nurse? Doctor Harridan is not satisfied in his mind as to the cause of Mrs. Featherstone's death."

"—But she died of a heart attack, I was there at the time," Val stammered.

The Captain smothered a sigh. He was irritated and out of sympathy with the whole affair. A death on board was bad enough, but a hint of murder was far worse. "Doctor Harridan says that since Mrs. Featherstone came on board he had never set eyes on her until after she was dead." He had been consulting some notes on his desk, but now he glanced up at her sharply. "You agree to that, Nurse?"

"Yes, but I—I didn't realize myself how serious Mrs. Featherstone's condition might prove, Captain," Val said, leaning forward and speaking earnestly. "Her own doctor in Hampshire, Doctor Mangin, had led me to believe that her heart condition was mainly imaginary. Besides, she was determined that I shouldn't call in the ship's doctor."

"And why might that be?" the Captain asked, bridling. "Our company is known to engage the best officers available."

"Mrs. Featherstone had known Doctor Harridan before. They parted, I'm afraid, on unfriendly terms," Dirk broke in to say.

The Captain felt more annoyed than ever. He was suddenly wondering if it might not have been some personal spite on Harridan's part that had made him take the stand he had. While they had been shipmates he had admired Harridan for his efficiency, but he had never really liked him.

"I wasn't aware of that," he said aloud. "But I'm sure it has no bearing on this present case."

"I think it has, Captain," Dirk said earnestly. "I'm of the opinion that Doctor Harridan would not have been averse to signing the death certificate but for the fact he had known the dead woman, and incidentally myself. And apart from the fact that he wasn't called in until too late, has he any other reason for not signing the certificate?"

The Captain made another awkward "hum, hum" noise in his throat. "I'm afraid so, Mr. Hanson. Doctor Harridan is of the opinion that some pills other than the heart pills prescribed may have been given to Mrs. Featherstone last night. He suggests that there should be an autopsy once we reach Kingston. Natural—"

Are You Overbreathing?

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

YOU may be overbreathing in an effort to get more fresh air. This influence of the upright position, plus the abrupt increase in overbreathing brought on by panic, sometimes produces syncope which automatically halts the hyperventilation.

Consistent effort to breathe slowly and normally might help. In some cases, however, focusing attention on the mechanism of breathing only increases tension and overbreathing occurs despite efforts to stop it.

Carbon Dioxide

Breathing too deeply and too frequently doesn't mean you take in too much fresh air, but that you expel too much carbon dioxide. This disturbs the delicate chemical balance in your body.

If you are overbreathing, you'll probably breathe through your mouth. You'll moisten your dry lips with your tongue and your dry pharynx by swallowing. These actions can soon distend your stomach with air. And this in turn may cause a pain in the lower left chest.

A dull ache or gnawing pain in the upper left chest may also accompany overbreathing.

Natural Reflexes

Occasionally, a person may halt hyperventilation by natural reflexes such as rising to his feet.

Mrs. Dountz Gives Report At Meet Of Local DAR

Mrs. Kermit Dountz gave a report on the book "Top Soil and Civilization," when Mrs. Harold O. Borror of Grove City entertained 35 members of the Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The book, which was reported by Mrs. Dountz, discussed the influence of agriculture in the development of civilization.

The great cultures of the world were predicted on the husbandry of the soil. The authors contended that the surplus products of the farmers toil sustained the population enabling it to enliven and augment its society.

Our pioneers in their westward migration discovered nature had been formed abundantly. Finding such treasure in existence little effort was expended to conserve the blessings of forests and fertile soil. Only in later years was national recognition focused on the problem of soil conservation.

Miss Marie Hamilton, Regent, and Mrs. Christian Schwartz, Chaplain, opened the meeting with the DAR ritual. Mrs. Ben Nothstine led the salute to the flag and Mrs. James Moffit led the singing.

Good citizenship medals, sponsored by the Chapter, were announced as being awarded to the following senior girls: Peggy Jo Hoover, Walnut; Carol Bass, Circleville; Rebecca Neff, Jackson; Jeannette West, Williamstown; Nancy Wolfe, Pickaway; Judith Bowers, Ashville; Edith Carol Picklesimer, Darby and Miriam Ward, Scioto.

Plans were completed for a memorial service to be held for two deceased members, Mrs. Paul Cromley and Mrs. Franklin Kibler Sr., at 4 p. m. May 24 at Forrest Cemetery.

Design For Airpower

(Editor's Note: This column is furnished as a public service, by Office of Information Services, Air Research and Development Command, U. S. Air Force.)

Higher Than a Kite

Striking towards his elusive target, the fighter pilot peers into his gun sight, pushes the firing button... a near miss! Within seconds, ground personnel radio him the miss distance and angle. The "enemy fighter" was a new high-speed tow-target, one of several designs under development. Engineering testing of these tow-targets is one of the many jobs of ARDC's Ament Center in Florida. A far cry from the old canvas "sock," the new targets can be towed at speeds above six hundred miles an hour.

Previously, a pilot would count the holes in the canvas sock after the mission and try to do better the next time.

Although this system helped to improve the marksmanship of fighter pilots, it was of little use in testing the accuracy of new electronic gun sights which are a "must" in high-speed aerial combat.

Towed by fast jets, the "three-dimensional" targets can be controlled like model planes and landed with the tow aircraft—that is, unless the "attacker" or his gun sight is so good that nothing is left of the target except the long towing cable.

Manna From Heaven

It wasn't exactly manna that fell from the skies in North Korea, only aluminum. But to our enemies during the Korean War the scarce metal was as precious as the biblical food from heaven.

The airmail delivery of aluminum supplies occurred every time our jets dropped the external fuel tanks attached to the wings which are used to extend range of the airplane. Without the wing tanks, the jets could go faster, but the enemy received a welcome gift of badly needed aluminum.

The Air Force is now in the process of replacing aluminum wing tanks with plastic ones which shatter on impact. Thus, in the event of future hostilities, we will not only conserve our own aluminum supplies, but there will be no more aluminum-manna for our opponents.

Playing with fire. Fire and smoke belch from the crashed airplane. Using every new technique and equipment, intrepid fire fighters soon bring the blaze under control. "That took too long," says the instructor, looking up from his watch. "Let's try it again."

Scenes like this are routine at the Air Force's Fire Fighting and Crash Rescue School at Lowry Air Force Base, Colorado. Rookie firemen and rescue personnel now practice on unique trainers modeled after actual airplanes. Made of steel plate and supported by beams sunk into a concrete foundation, the trainers contain escape hatches, gun positions, fuel lines and fuel tanks. By means of outside valves, the instructor can duplicate many types of crash fires.

So far, four experimental models have been constructed by ARDC. They will provide far more realistic training than the present method of burning discarded and badly battered, gasoline-drenched airframes.

The new trainer will help turn out men who will face their important assignments with the confidence that only thorough practice can instill.

Facts and Figures

A new gray paint, standard on USAF fighters armed with rockets or missiles, is a protective coating to preserve aircraft skin against corrosive effects of hot rocket and missile gases.

Eighty-five planes, featuring racks of electronic testing equipment are used by the Civil Aeronautics Administration to police 100,000 miles of U.S. airways.

In 16 years of operation, one major U. S. airline has safely carried 2,021,483 passengers across

Lake County Debt Highest In Ohio

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio auditor's office says Lake County has the largest per capita debt in the state—almost $336 for each resident.

The figure was obtained by dividing the 1950 census total of 75,979 into the county's total debt of more than $25½ million. The debt is composed of school, municipal, county and township totals. Morgan County had the smallest per capita debt—$29.

more than 20 million miles of ocean—is the equivalent of moving the entire population of Philadelphia to the moon and back 435 times.

One screw of a jet bomber costs half a cent if made of steel and $1.36 if made of titanium, but by using titanium screws, the aircraft manufacturer cuts 99 pounds off the weight of the plane and saves $4,950 in the cost of the aircraft.

This Is What District Vets Want To Know

(Veterans who have a question of interest to ex-servicemen should pass it along to Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer Jim Shea. His offices are in the basement of the courthouse at Circleville.)

Q—My husband is on active service in the Air Force. Our son is in need of an operation. Since we do not have the money for it, can we get this operation at an Air Force base?

A—If the child is 14 years of age or older, it is possible to have the operation done at the Lockbourne Air Force Base. If he is under 14 years of age, the nearest place for the operation is Wright Patterson Field, Dayton.

Q—I have lost my original discharge. I would like to make application for a GI loan. Can I use a certified copy of my discharge for this purpose?

A—No, you cannot. The VA will not accept a certified copy of your discharge for GI loan purposes. If you have lost your original discharge, we will have to make application to the service department for a certificate in lieu of a lost or destroyed discharge. The VA will honor this certificate.

Q—My father has passed away. He was a veteran of World War I. I would like to have a flag for his casket. Where can I get one?

A—This matter should be handled by your undertaker. Upon proper application by the undertaker, a U.S. flag can be secured from the Post Office for use on a casket.

Q—I am moving to a new home. Since I am receiving a compensation check each month from the VA, is it sufficient that I notify the Post Office of my change of address, or must I write a letter to the VA?

A—Neither is sufficient. It is the desire of the VA that change of address be sent to them on an official form VA Form 4-572, merely sending a letter to them notifying them of the change is not advisable.

Q—Is it still possible to get a direct GI loan from the Cincinnati VA office?

A—Yes. Public Law 88 extend-

FARM NEWS and VIEWS

By R. S. SWENSON, County Agent

Demonstration Plots

All Pickaway County farmers are invited to attend a twilight meeting at the Pickaway County Home farm to view differences in demonstration plots seeded last August 11. The date is Monday evening, May 28, between the hours of 7 and 8:30 p. m.

Many county farmers will recall that a 20-acre field was renovated and summer seedings made with the assistance of the county machinery dealers. Various combinations of broom grass, orchard grass, timothy, alfalfa, red clover, late maturing orchard grass, and

Southern alfalfa were used in the demonstration area.

In addition to the different varieties, various methods of preparing the soil and various methods of seeding were also used at the demonstration area. There will be some very striking differences which can be seen on May 28.

One bit of information which may interest some folks which will be shown very definitely is that Southern alfalfa did not do very well under the conditions existing this past winter.

Visitors are also invited to visit the farm pond which was built at the animal shelter on the same date.

Under a law recently passed by Congress, farmers may make application for refund of the United States gasoline tax.

Farmers must make application on forms which will be available through our office after the 1st of June. At least that is the information we have at the present time.

Change in Title

Word comes from the State Extension Office that the title of the home demonstration agent will be changed to extension county home economics agent, effective next July 1. The move is being made to describe more adequately the duties of a home demonstration agent. The demonstration part of the home economics activity is only a small part of her duties.

The title of the state home demonstration leader will also change to leader, home economics extension, and assistant state 4-H Club leaders will be known as supervisors of 4-H.

Armed Forces Day—1956

"Each year on the third Saturday in May, the Armed Forces of the United States, including the Reserve components and auxiliary Services, make a special effort to increase public understanding of our national defense program which is, and has been from the beginning of our Republic, dedicated to achieving and maintaining peace.

"In the present world situation, it is most important that our own people, and others throughout the world who believe as we do, should be cognizant of all aspects of our national strength—the spiritual and the moral, as well as the material and the military—and be reminded of our continuing efforts for peace.

"The purpose of Armed Forces Day is to increase public understanding of, and to emphasize, our peaceful aspirations. I hope that all Americans, as well as many of our friends in other lands, will accept the invitation to visit our Armed Forces at this time."

Ohio Motorists Cut Bloody Swath During 1st 3 Months

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio motorists cut a bloodier swath than ever during the first three months of this year.

In the first 1956 quarter, the state department of highway safety reported, highway deaths rose 9 per cent, injuries soared 21 per cent and the number of accidents jumped 18 per cent over the first 1955 quarter.

The one bright spot in the whole picture: The death rate for each 100 million car-miles dropped from 5.5 to 5.1.

The report says:

Medics Say Man Dead Drunk Plus

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Cemetery worker John W. Newton has started serving 35 days in jail for drunken driving. Amazed medical authorities can hardly believe he's alive to serve the term.

Municipal Judge James S. Blaine noted that a blood test given Newton after his arrest showed up as .480 on the scale. The judge observed that a scale reading of .150 is regarded as drunkenness.

County medical authorities testified that an alcoholic content of more than .400 is "deadly."

Labor Leaders Still Hope For Special Pay

Supplemental Income Plan Given Chance In Ohio By Union Chiefs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Labor leaders count on an ace in the hole to win their Ohio battle for "SUB."

That's short for supplemental unemployment benefits. And that means payments in addition to state jobless compensation.

Administrator James R. Tichenor of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation has ruled that supplemental pay must be deducted from jobless compensation benefits made in the same weeks.

But "SUB" contracts of the CIO Auto Workers with Ford and General Motors in Ohio contain an apparent method of getting the same payments as though Tichenor had ruled favorably.

"SUB" contracts provide for jobless GM and Ford workers to draw 65-60 per cent of their regular pay for a maximum of 26 weeks. Such payments are scheduled to start in a number of states next month. But the alternative payment plan in Ohio contracts could not start before June 1, 1957.

The alternative plan calls for jobless workers to sandwich "SUB" payments between state unemployment benefits so they would fall on different weeks and thus avoid a clash with Tichenor's ruling. Officials gave this illustration:

A worker granted $30 weekly in state benefits, but entitled to $45 weekly under "SUB" normally would draw $30 from the state plus $15 in "SUB" payments each week.

Under the alternative plan, the same worker would draw $30 a week for three weeks but would not apply for a state check on the fourth week. In the fourth week of his idle period he would get $60 in "SUB" payments.

The worker would continue to draw state benefits for another three weeks and a "SUB" check every fourth week during his idle period.

By following that alternating program, officials said the workers would get the same amount, over a longer period, as he would under regular state benefits plus "SUB" payments each week.

State law permits jobless payments for a maximum of 26 weeks during any one year regardless of whether the payments are made on consecutive weeks or not, officials explained.

The state jobless benefit maximum alone is $33 a week plus dependency allowances.

Officials declined to comment on legality of the alternate method of drawing "SUB" payments under the CIO contracts. Nor would they speculate on whether the Legislature convening next January might change state laws to bar such "SUB" payments a year from next June.

The Legislative Service Commission, fact-finding arm of the General Assembly, is making a study of supplemental unemployment pay. Members will report any recommendations to the next legislative session.

Democracy Rules When Jurors Meet

The Pickaway County Bar Association has arranged to have a manual of information and instructions distributed to those called upon for jury service. Because of the importance of the subject with which it deals, The Herald has brought the text of the booklet to all its readers.

Today's concluding installment consists of the last two sections in the 14-section booklet. The material is written directly to those chosen for jury duty.

13. Decision Due, The Charge. After all testimony has been completed and oral arguments by the lawyers come to an end, the judge instructs or charges you with your exact duties.

Accept these charges exactly as they are given, remembering that the judge and the jury are the two impartial parties at the lawsuit.

Instructions are based on the law which already has been decided, perhaps centuries ago, and it must be followed by you, the parties, lawyers and even the judge himself.

If there is a dispute of facts, it is for the jury to decide which side shall prevail. The judge will not tell you which side had the best evidence. That is YOUR job.

14. The Jury Room

When the judge has completed his instructions, you are escorted to the jury room. He normally will

Cyclist Killed

CLEVELAND (AP)—Robert White, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. White, was killed here yesterday when he fell beneath a rear wheel of a Cleveland Transit System bus while riding his bicycle home from school.

eral Motors as well as union leaders have urged a commission study group to recommend approval of "SUB" for several thousand auto plant workers in Ohio.

After ruling out "SUB" payments in addition to simultaneous state jobless benefits, Tichenor turned down a union request to ask for an attorney general's opinion. Unionists hoped the opinion might reverse Tichenor's ruling.

Tichenor's stand marked another rebuff for unionists who want Ohio to join other states in starting "SUB" payments next June 1.

Last year the Legislature and voters at the polls refused authority for "SUB" payments under a proposal initiated by the Ohio CIO Council and backed by other unions.

send along the exhibits and the legal papers which have been filed in the case. If he doesn't and they are wanted, feel free to ask for them.

A foreman should be chosen from among your number by yourselves to act as your presiding officer and chairman of your discussions.

The next step, discussing evidence and working toward a verdict, cannot be defined so expressly pointed out. It will depend entirely upon the jurors and the case.

But each juror must be given a chance to express his or her ideas and discussion should move along in a channel toward the most intelligent determination of the issues.

Discussion should include an exchange of ideas and a juror should not hesitate to change his views if he or she feels a change of opinion.

But no juror should be pressured into changing his mind and each has the right to be firm in his beliefs if it is an honest conviction.

Nor should a juror change his mind just to be a "good fellow" or to "go along" with the crowd. Each juror's decision must be independent and solely the belief of the individual.

When all the jurors are agreed that they have reached their final and unalterable decision, you will give the signal that you are ready to return to the courtroom.

The judge will ask, and the foreman will answer, with your verdict.

You then will be dismissed. It is hoped that your conscience will be clear and that it has guided you fairly in the great responsibility you have exercised; that you will leave the courthouse with the warm glow of knowing that yours was a job well done in an intelligent, honest and unbiased manner; and that you have contributed your best effort to our democratic way of government.

Both you and our country will profit by your experience—if your job was well done.

Vivien Kellums To Seek Ouster Of GOP Senator

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Miss Vivien Kellums, who battles federal income tax laws and the Connecticut Republican state organization with equal vigor, announced that she will seek the GOP nomination for U. S. senator.

She wants the Senate seat now held by Prescott Bush (R), whom top party leaders are backing for the nomination. She is the first to enter the race against him.

Miss Kellums, 59, who operates a small cable grip factory in Stonington, first gained nationwide prominence about 10 years ago over her refusal to withhold income tax payments from her employees' pay. Her frequent challenges to the Treasury Department to "sue me" went for naught, however. The government put a lien on her bank account, and eventually she resumed paying the tax.

Pennsy Turnpike Tolls Changing

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—New toll schedules for the 400-mile Pennsylvania Turnpike, featuring a 41 per cent boost for passenger cars and a 21 per cent cut for trucks, have been announced.

Passenger car toll from the Ohio line to the Delaware River bridge will be increased to $5.50.

Truck tolls vary according to the size of the vehicle but for a truck weighing under 62,000

Cleveland Due To Get Clinton Air Squadron

CLEVELAND (AP)—Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, commander of the 1st U. S. Air Force, says a reserve troop carrier squadron will be moved into Cleveland Hopkins Airport by next December.

The general, here to attend an Armed Forces Day luncheon, said the 375th Troop Carrier Squadron of the 302nd wing would be transferred here from Clinton County Airport near Wilmington.

He said the squadron would use one of two hangers at headquarters of the old 433rd troop carrier wing at Schlegel Air Force Base. The Cadillac tank plant is now using the hanger for storage and maintenance.

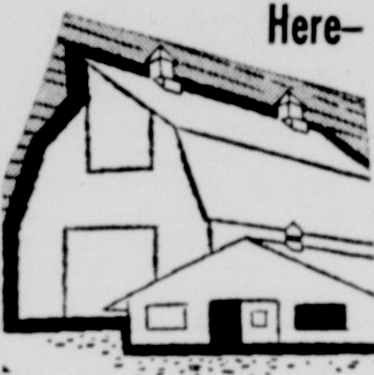

It was announced that the squadron will move out of Cleveland following completion of an Air Force facility in the Akron-Canton area, possibly within the next two or three years.

The city of Cleveland has granted the squadron use of Cleveland Hopkins Airport runways provided the field be used only as a temporary measure until the Air Force gets its own base and that the squadron will not interfere with regular air traffic.

pounds the fare for the 360-mile trip will drop from $23.80 to $18.95.
